Gen. Meyers Called Liar And Snake By Lamarre

Parts Plant Head Defends Honor of Wife; New Morals Charges Injected

Denies Being 'Girl Friend'

MRS. LAMARRE denies Meyers' charge that she was his "girl friend." Page 3.

Day of Sensations

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Bleriot Lamarre, husband of the woman whose honor was attacked by Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers in his desperate fight to save himself from criminal charges took the stand yesterday to denounce the retired officer as "a liar and a snake."

The 35-year-old Lamarre said in a dramatic plea to the Senate War Investigating Committee:

"It is my sincere hope that this committee will make General Meyers crawl out of this room on his belly like the snake that he is."

Lamarre's defense of his wife came right on the heels of a sensational disclosure that R. A. Curnutt, Meyers' father-in-law, had come before the committee primed with a memorandum in which the honor of still another woman was impugned.

President of Firm

Lamarre, a reedy blond who seems to have lost 10 pounds overnight, was president of Aviation Electric Corp., organized by Meyers, which reaped war profits from subcontracts on Government work.

Meyers, as second ranking AAF procurement officer during the war, was forbidden by law to do business with companies he dealt with as a Government officer.

Cornutt, Meyers' father-in-law, shot from a job as a $40-a-week bus driver to the $12,000-a-year vice presidency of Aviation Electric.

Questions Submitted

Curnutt, fumbling and hesitating, had failed to give the testimony with which he was armed, but it was disclosed as a series of questions which would have brought it out was submitted on Meyers behalf by his counsel, John H. Amen.

The committee put Curnutt's memorandum into the record. The memorandum said that one of the reasons Curnutt had left the Aviation Electric Co. was that he had found Lamarre and his secretary locked in each others' arms.

It was this that Curnutt, father of the general's third wife, had balked at giving, and that the questions of the general sought to elicit.

In previous testimony Lamarre's secretary had been identified as Marcella Weaver Readnower, wife of T. E. Readnower, Lamarre's brother-in-law.

Claimed Some Chivalry

Lamarre, who had sat waiting in stony silence all day to answer the general, referred to the attacks on both women. He said:

"When General Meyers took the witness stand he took pains to indictate that he was a man of phenomenal intelligence, extremely high integrity and—by deduction,

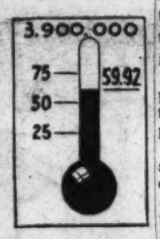
60% of Goal Reported in Chest Drive

Meeting Is Put Off To Tuesday to Permit Intensified Work

The 1948 Community Chest Federation campaign yesterday recorded 59.92 per cent of its 3,900,000 goal.

New contributions totaling 227,515.84 were disclosed at the drive's sixth report luncheon, in the Chamber of Commerce Building. Latest gifts placed the intake to date at 2,336,868.39.



Campaign Chairman Edward H. Foley, jr., announced that a report meeting scheduled for the full campaign organization Monday has been cancelled, in order to give volunteer workers an extra full day of soliciting. A supper meeting was set for Tuesday night at Hotel Mayflower.

"Between now and Tuesday," Foley told the hundreds of workers attending yesterday's meeting, "I hope it will be possible to bring the score from approximately 60 per cent to 75 per cent."

Weekend Drive Urged

He pointed out that as "the goal line" draws nearer, the job of reaching the goal becomes "harder and harder." "I know we can put this one over," he added.

Foley urged the volunteers to extend their campaigning efforts over the weekend, suggesting that they devote all their leisure time today and tomorrow to completing calls assigned them.

"So long as we keep uppermost in our minds that this campaign is an unselfish cause, designed to unite all faiths and creeds in service to those in need, there should be no question about putting our Sunday hours to productive use," Foley said.

Speakers at the luncheon, at which residential unit workers were honored, were Nina Winter, 10, of 4209 Eastern ave., Mount Rainier, Md., a Camp Fire girl, and David Kurtzman, 12, of 3925 Fulton st. nw., a Boy Scout of Troop 3.

Inflation Plan Action Asked By Anderson

Secretary Approaches Congress on 2 Points, But Skips Third

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson asked Congress yesterday for legislation to carry out two phases of the President's anti-inflation program.

But at the same time, he appeared to pour cold water on a third item of Mr. Truman's 10-point plan.

Testifying before the opening session of the Joint Committee on the Economic Report, Anderson asked for laws to implement points two and six of the plan the Chief Executive presented to Congress on Monday. The principal pieces of legislation he requested would:

1. Permit the Government to set margin requirements for speculative trading in commodity exchanges.

2. Authorize the Commodity Credit Corporation to stimulate food production in foreign—principally non-European—countries by making advance contracts for the purchase of some of their crops. The foodstuffs thus purchased would go principally to European nations as part of the foreign-aid program, and would take some of the pressure off the demand for American wheat and other scarce farm products.

Doubts About Livestock

Anderson stressed these two points as urgent to hold prices down and facilitate European relief. But he alluded three times in the course of the testimony to his doubts about point five of the President's program.

This calls for measures to encourage the marketing of livestock at lighter weights and lower grades in order to prevent the wasteful diversion of wheat to the feeding of cattle and hogs.

Anderson said he had repeatedly explored suggestions of Agricultural Department officials for penalty taxes against overweight and top-grade cattle, and for premium payments for lighter weight, lower-grade stock. He said he was not satisfied that any of the procedures so far suggested would accomplish the desired purpose.

Silent on Allocation

His argument was that the imposition of price ceilings would accomplish the desired end without requiring the penalty taxes or premium payments, but that if there were no price control, the

One to Go for Turnover

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday appointed new leaders for the Army and Marine Corps, leaving only one to go for a complete turnover of the United States high command team.

Omar Bradley, the "GIs general," was named Army Chief of Staff. He will succeed Gen. Dwight D. Isenhower probably late in February.

As successor to General A. A. Vandegrift, Marine commandant, the President chose Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates, commander of the Marines' Quantico, Va., base. Cates, one of the most-decorated of Leathernecks, led the famed Marine Fourth Division at Iwo Jima.

Denfield Succeeding Nimitz

Sometime next year, the newly unified armed services are expected to have an entirely new high command. Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, already has been named to succeed Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz next month.

Gen. Carl (Tooey) Spaatz is expected to retire in 1948, probably in early summer, though his term has several years to go. The air conqueror of Germany is said to feel that a younger man should lead the newly independent Air Force. His deputy, 48-year-old Lieut. Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, is often mentioned as Spaatz's successor.

Besides elevating Bradley and Cates to the top of their services, Mr. Truman also approved a new group of intermediate commanders in the Navy. He indorsed the report of a Navy selection board which picked 23 captains for permanent promotion to rear admiral.

To Leave VA About Dec. 1

Bradley, who commanded the Twelfth Army group in Europe during the war, will leave his post as Veterans Administrator and return to the Army about December 1. He is expected to take a leave and then make a survey of Army posts before becoming Chief of Staff.

A spokesman for Eisenhower—now at Walter Reed Hospital for physical checkup—said that Ike probably will leave the Pentagon late in February. He will take a 60-day leave before becoming president of Columbia University.

Selection of the 54-year-old Bradley for the top Army job had been a foregone conclusion. Next to "Ike," he was the outstanding leader of the great American war machine which crushed Hitlerism in the West. Probably less known than Patton and others to the American public, he was familiarly and affectionately regarded as a "soldier's soldier" to the rank and file.

Eight Are Aviators

Eight aviators were among the 23 new rear admirals selected yesterday. Several now hold temporary rank as rear admirals or commodore. The selection board, which was headed by Admiral Denfield, did not go down the Navy list as far as some had anticipated in picking the new flag officers.

Though they chose captains as far down as the Naval Academy class of 1922, a proviso of the new Navy personnel law was invoked so that members of the Annapolis classes of '21 and '22 are not considered "passed over." Those on the promotion list:

Rear Admiral (temporary Earl Everett Stone, 5004 Jamestown rd., now chief of naval communications.

Rear Admiral Augustus J. Wellings, deputy commander of the Pacific Fleet service force.

Commodore James Edward Maher, 19 West Thornapple st.,

RFC Funds For Stopgap Aid Sought

Provision for Quick Relief Missed in Senate Bill; House Committee to Act

$100,000,000 Advance

An interim aid advance installment of around 100 million dollars by the RFC, to make certain western Europe gets relief funds in time, may be authorized in the still pending stop-gap legislation.

This was indicated yesterday by Representative Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.), whose House Foreign Affairs committee still is working on an interim bill.

Omission of provisions for the RFC advance from the 597 million dollar interim bill approved Wednesday by the Senate Foreign Relations committee was described in one Senate quarter as an "oversight."

A committee amendment granting RFC the necessary authority is expected to be offered after the bill reaches the Senate floor Monday.

Prabably Put In Bill

Eaton told reporters his House Foreign Affairs committee will probably write it directly into their own version of the stopgap bill.

The aid bills now moving on both sides of the Capitol are simply "authorizations." The implementing funds must be passed on by House and Senate Appropriations committees. It was pointed out that any delays there might hold up relief for Italy, France and Austria long after Congress has passed the enabling legislation.

The RFC advance, for which a precedent exists in the Foreign Relief Act of last session, is designed to keep pipelines full during any time-lag after Secretary Marshall's December 1 "deadline."

Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee meanwhile told a conference of Senate Republicans the 597 million dollars provided in his committee's stopgap bill is a ceiling figure. He pointed out that the Appropriations Committees of the two houses are not bound by it and are free to make their own recommendations.

Prompt Action Asked

Vanderberg told colleagues, however, that "the urgency of the situation calls for as prompt action as possible," GOP Conference Chairman Eugene Millikin (Colorado) told reporters.

According to Millikin, Vandenberg told the Senate Republicans "it would be perfectly possible for them to back stopgap aid, no matter what their feelings are on the Marshall Plan, since the first provides emergency relief as distinguished from long-range recovery of Europe.

Vandenberg reiterated his Wednesday night target date for Senate passage of the interim bill. He assured Senators, however, that no "pressure tactics" would be used to put it through.

Senate Bill Basis

The House Foreign Affairs Committee meanwhile decided to use the Senate committee bill as a "working base" for drafting their own.

Representative John M. Vorys (R., Ohio), told reporters the committee "got only halfway through it" at yesterday's session. The House group will meet again today, with a report probable early next week. House debate is tentatively slated the following week.

The House committee yesterday took time out from writing a bill to hear a report from Representative Francis Case (R., S. Dak.), chairman of the Austrian Subcommittee of the Special House Committee on Foreign Aid.

Railroad Executive

Carl R. Gray Appointed As Veterans Administrator

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday named Carl R. Gray, jr., of St. Paul, railroad engineer and executive, to succeed Gen. Omar N. Bradley as Administrator of Veterans Affairs.

A native Kansan and an old friend of Mr. Truman, the 58-year-old veteran of both World Wars will assume direction of Veterans' Administration January 1.

General Bradley, designated to succeed "Ike" Eisenhower as Army Chief of Staff, will leave VA December 1. Omer W. Clark, executive assistant administrator, will run VA between Bradley's departure and Gray's arrival.

The long-awaited naming of Bradley's successor presages announcement Monday of the resignation of Maj. Gen. Paul R. Hawley as VA medical director.

Word of the resignation, planned for January 1, has been withheld pending White House action on the new VA boss. Dr. Hawley, who raised VA medicine from third-rate status to high-standard stature, indicated some weeks ago he would leave when Bradley did. Leaders of the medical profession, in and out of VA, have been beating a path to the White House to urge appointment of General Hawley as Bradley's successor in a move to protect VA's medical program. Hawley, himself, has persistently discouraged the move.

Appointment of Railroader Gray to succeed Infantryman Bradley won widespread approval yesterday. VA medical chiefs have already received "the word" that Gray is sympathetic to their program. The new VA director's brother, Dr. Howard K. Gray, is a staff member of the Mayo Foundation, which is a leading champion of the VA medical program.

Marshall Tells British 'Plan' Is Progressing

Secretary to Confer With Murphy Over Four-Power Disputes

London, Nov. 21 (AP).—Secretary of State Marshall cautiously reassured the British people today that plans for American aid to Europe are "progressing favorably" in Congress.

He volunteered this information in response to a British radio correspondent's request for a statement upon his arrival here to attend the four-power Foreign Ministers Conference on German and Austrian peace treaties. The conference opens Tuesday.

Marshall was the first of the ministers to reach London. Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and the French Foreign Minister are expected some time this weekend.

The American Secretary of State, who made the transatlantic flight in President Truman's plane, was met at Northolt Airport by United States Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas.

Marshall said he would confer during the next few days with Robert Murphy and other diplomats doing preliminary work here on the forthcoming German discussions. Out of this review may come a final determination of American policy in the meeting.

That it will be a rough, tough conference is strongly indicated by the experience of Murphy and the other foreign ministers' deputies here. After a dozen meetings they failed to agree on anything—even on how to report their disagreements to their chiefs. They made another futile attempt today to compose a report but again split three to one—the Western powers against Russia.

At the airport, Marshall reiterated his view—expressed earlier in Washington—that he is neither pessimistic nor optimistic about the outcome of the meeting here, but is simply going to do his best to reach an agreement on Germany.

Egypt asked the deputy foreign ministers studying the future of Italy's prewar colonies to allow the incorporation of Italian Eritrea into Egyptian territory and to grant immediate independence to a unified Libya.

Abdel Fattah Amir Pasha, Egyptian ambassador to London, said his government also insisted that the people of Italian Somaliland be given the right to determine their own future.

To questions from Waldemar Gallman, United States deputy, Amir Pasha said Egypt was claiming Eritrea "as a whole" and that Egypt would grant land-locked Ethiopia an outlet to the sea if the grant was made.

Iran Is Guilty Of Hostile Act, Russia Claims

Country Is Warned Of Consequences Over Disagreement on Oil

Wouldn't Halt Export

TRUMAN SEES no need to halt shipments of machinery to Russia, he says. Page 4.

Angry Note Sent

Moscow, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—Russia has warned Iran that its concellation of an oil agreement with the Soviet Union constitutes hostile action and that its government must bear responsibility for the consequences it was announced today.

Russian Ambassador I. V. Sadchikov delivered to the Iranian Foreign Office in Tehran yesterday an angry note which said:

"The Iranian government has treacherously broken obligations which it had taken upon itself.

"The Soviet government cannot ignore that the decision of the Majlis (Parliament) . . . in view of the preservation of a British oil concession in southern Iran, is an act of rude discrimination toward the Soviet Union.

"On the basis of the above the Soviet government declares a resolute protest against the abovementioned hostile actions of the Iranian government toward the Soviet Union—incompatible with normal relations between two states—and places responsibility for the consequences of this upon the Iranian government."

There was no hint what Russia's next step might be in a situation which brought the United Nations Security Council its first great crisis and caused the famous walkouts of Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko. The first move might be a break in relations.

Premier Ahmed Qavam of Iran agreed on April 4, 1946, to a 50-year agreement giving Russia a 50-year oil concession in Iran's northern Azerbaijan Province. The agreement called for formation of a "society" for exploitation. During the first 25 years, Russia would have controlled 51 per cent of the stock in the company. During the second 25 years the stock would have been divided 50-50.

Iran always maintained that the concession was granted only under pressure, during the U. N. crisis which was hinged on the presence of Russian troops in northern Iran. Government and parliament alike in Tehran had stalled off all Russian attempts to get the pact ratified.

Soviet troops left in May, 1946, and on October 22 the Majlis rejected the concession finally by a vote of 102 to 2.

Blum Fails In Attempt At Centrist Government

Both De Gaullists And Reds Reject French Premier; Vote Falls 9 Short

By Walter Kerr

Paris, Nov. 21 (NYHT).—An honest, courageons man—Leon Blum, 75-year-old veteran of French politics—failed tonight to obtain a vote of confidence from the National Assembly for his nomination as prime minister.

The count showed 300 votes in his favor and 277 votes against. There were 28 abstentions. Blum needed 309 votes to obtain a simple majority.

It appeared tonight that it is fairly easy to determine what this rejection means. If any conclusion can be drawn at all, the most striking are these: That France is divided irrevocably between Communists and Gen. Charles de Gaulle and that there is no middle way, Blum believed in a middle way.

Meet Again Today

He was defeated in the end by a few men who were not willing to accept his thesis that this country is threatened to the same extent by the Communist Party and the tall general who rallied French resistance to Adolf Hitler. In their opinion the Communists are a greater danger.

Blum would accept no compromise.

So now it is up to President Vincent Auriol, his old Socialist friend, to pick another man to succeed Premier Paul Ramadier. He may turn to another Socialist or he may go to another party—perhaps to a Radical Socialist like Henri Queille. Whomever he selects will have to be more friendly to De Gaulle than Blum was this afternoon if he hopes to obtain a majority in the Assembly.

Understanding that President Auriol will want to act quickly because of the widening labor unrest and increasing living costs, Edouard Herriot, president of the Assembly, told the parliamentarians to meet again at 3 p. m. tomorrow and to be ready "for any eventualities."

Blum Fears De Gaulle

To understand what happened tonight, you have to recall the municipal elections last month when De Gaulle, heading the new Rally of the French People, polled an astonishing number of votes.

He based his platform on opposition to the Communist Party and it turned out to be a popular platform after the French Communist Party leaders returned from the organization meeting of the Belgrade International or Cominform.

Since that meeting French Communists have taken a new line: That the United States wants war, that the Soviet Union wants peace, and that every Frenchman friendly

French Workers Rebuff Communist Organizers

By William Attwood

Paris, Nov. 21 (NYHT).—Communist labor organizers were meeting with growing resistance from French workers throughout the nation on the third day of France's politically inspired strike wave.

Despite Communist claims of success, the workers themselves were voting to stay on the job in nearly every election where the secret ballot prevailed.

Following yesterday's 77 per cent antistrike vote at the Citroen Automobile Works in Paris, most of the plant's employes were back at work this morning.

A one-hour "protest" strike of subway and bus workers, ordered by the Communists, failed completely this afternoon when the employes just went on working. Traffic was briefly interrupted on only two lines.

This particular strike was termed a "dress rehearsal for a general strike" by the Socialist newspaper Le Populaire.

Parisian druggists, department store employes and civil servants flatly refused to join in similar protest demonstrations.

In northern France, more and more miners were going back to the pits at the Draucourt mines. Sixty per cent of the underground workers returned today, forcing their way past pickets.

The plight of the strike-bound port of Marseilles was unchanged except for the refusal of the city's railway station employes to join yesterday's sudden railroad strike. The vote was 327-28.

While some 600,000 workers are on strike throughout the nation, the "right to work" became a kind of slogan for non-Communist labor leaders.

Requests Injunction

Children's Museum to Use Non-Union Stage Hands Today

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

One of the most unusual requests for a labor injunction under the Taft-Hartley Act was made yesterday by the Children's Museum of Washington.

Charging the local stage hands union with featherbedding, closed shop and hiring hall activities, the museum said it is planning to use amateur stage hands to present its play, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," at George Washington University's Lisner Auditorium today.

Miss Matilda Young, director of the Children's Museum, said the play, one of an annual series, will go as scheduled, despite the labor dispute at 10:30 and 2:30 p. m. today.

If the union stage hands appear and insst on payment, they will be paid she said, "to avoid any disturbance, for we have a great responsibility with so many children."

Charges against the union were filed yesterday by John H. Dorsey, a former associate chief of the

Tomorrow's Post Will Give Picture of Europe's Crisis

Secretary of State Marshall has been sent by special courier from the State Department an advance copy of the special, 16-page Marshall Plan section to appear in The Washington Post tomorrow. Because of the size of Sunday's Post it was necessary to print this special section in advance, for insertion into the regular issues of the paper.

In addition to rushing one copy to Secretary Marshall, the State Department requested The Washington Post to print 20,000 additional copies, to be mailed to State Department officials and libraries all over the world.

The special section appearing in tomorrow's Post is the work of the staff experts of the Foreign Policy Association and of Washington Post writers, including Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board; Herbert Elliston, editor, as well as Ferdinand Kuhn, jr., J. A. Livingston, John Ball, Robert Albright and Edward T. Folliard. The Marshall Plan section explains the whole European Recovery Program, the problems it hopes to solve and the difficulties presented. Washington Post readers will find it a valuable aid to their understanding of the most important issue facing America and the world today.

In Storm and Darkness

Wac Swept Off Ship Saved After 2 Hours in Midocean

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—The rescue of a Wac sergeant who was swept overboard from an Army transport at dusk during a storm in midatlantic was reported today at the Army's port of embarkation.

The sergeant, Vivian O'Rourke, of Chicago, was picked up after a two-hour search by a lifeboat that fought 30-foot waves and gale-like winds.

A radio message from the transport Gen. C. C. Ballou reported that when she was 1700 miles east of New York on November 19 the sergeant "was accidentally swept overboard." Life rafts with lights attached, to them were thrown overboard immediately and the transport maneuvered with great difficulty back to where its skipper thought the girl had fallen.

Searchlights swept the area while a lifeboat was launched. After two hours a light spotted a bobbing form in the water and the boat located the sergeant.

Third Officer Tunvald Gunderson and another seaman plunged into the waters and assisted the Wac into the boat. In the ship's hospital she was found to be in good condition," the Army said.

Carl R. Gray Appointed Veterans Administrator

all expressed gratification that the President had named a "businessman" to direct the complex activities of Veterans' Administration, which annually spend seven billion dollars in caring for the needs of 18 million veterans and their dependents.

Appointment "Surprise"

The appointment of Gray, presently vice president of Chicago & Northwestern Railway System, came as a "surprise" to veterans' leaders. In fact, it was one of the best-kept White House secrets in many a month.

Although little known nationally, the ruddy-faced, heavy-set engineer has earned a formidable reputation in industry for managerial ability and drive. Son of a president of the Union Pacific Railroad, Carl, jr., started his career in 1911—after graduation from the University of Illinois—as an engineer with the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad at the age of 22. He was moving up the ladder fast when he joined the Army Engineers in the first World War, rising from captain to colonel.

For some 10 years after the first World War, he left railroading for the business of holding down top posts with Montgomery Ward from 1919 to 1921 and from 1922 to 1925 with the City Ice Co. of Kansas City, Mo. He was an official of a Chicago bank for two years before returning to railroading in 1928.

Served Overseas 34 Months

Called back into the Army Engineers in May, 1942, Gray served overseas for 34 months, rose to major general, and served as director general of the military railways in North Africa, Italy, and later for the entire European theater. For outstanding work he won a large number of awards, both from the Army and Allied governments. He returned to the Chicago & Northwestern in May, 1946.

"We are soldier railroaders, not railroading soldiers," Gray said of his wartime railway engineers. His outfit was unique, and he developed a high spirit among his men.

Although known as a fellow who can be a tough guy when need be, Gray is also a sentimentalist. Throughout the war, he carried two watches, one set at regular time, and the other set for St. Paul time. St. Paul felt that the same way about their loyal booster. The city once named him king of the city's winter carnival.

Active in civic life and in activities of the Army reserve, Gray is president of the Society of American Military Engineers. His mother, Mrs. Harriette Gray, who lives in Thomaston, Me., was named "The American Mother of 1937" by the Golden Rule Foundation.

Japanese Astronomer Spots a New Comet

Tokyo, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—A Japanese astronomer, today claimed discovery of a new, tailless comet in the southern sky, close to Corvus.

Minoru Honda, of the Kurashiki observatory, who in previous years had discovered two comets, said he first sighted the new comet on November 14. He informed the central meteorological observatory at Tokyo, and is awaiting confirmation from scientists at Harvard.

Russians Seize Canadian Officers In German Zone

London, Nov. 21 (AP).—Moscow radio said tonight two Canadian officers attached to the Allied Control Council in Germany had been caught in Soviet East Prussia "engaged in special business."

The radio did not state the nature of the "special business" of the two Canadians it stated were picked up by Soviet frontier guards southwest of Kaliningrad (Koenigsberg).

It said, however, they gave "confused" explanations of having become lost en route between Danzig and Warsaw, and of thinking they were in the Soviet zone of Germany, when "in fact . . . they were quite aware where they were going."

(In New York, Canadian sources said the two Canadians were returning to Berlin from a visit to Warsaw. They were identified as Capt. Tony Claybon and James Weld, third secretary of the Canadian External Affairs Department.)

China's Population Reaches 461,000,000

Museum Asks Injunction

Field Legal Division of the National Labor Relations Board, now in private practice. The museum, he said, is protected against such union activity under the Taft-Hartley Act.

The charges against the Theatrical Stage Employes Local 22 (AFL), filed with Charles Brooks, associate general counsel of the NLRB, accuse the union of:

Insisting "that the museum hire nine of its members for each play at a cost of $262.41 notwithstanding that the museum has informed said local that it does not require the services of these nine as it has arranged to have the stage settings work performed by other employes selected by the museum."

Daniel V. Peck, president of the stage hands local, would only comment last night that, "We don't want to say anything at this time."

George Washington University President Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, reached at his home last night, said he had heard nothing about the dispute. "Our understanding with unions is that when we lease out the house the contractor will employ union people," he said.

Miss Young said yesterday that the children's plays, presented by Clare Tree Major's Children's Theator of New York with eight to 10 adult performers, have been offered here for 16 years. Since 1942, she said, they have been sponsored by the museum, a non-profit organization.

Performance of the plays, she said, requires only one regular stage hand, an electrician, and three boys to help move the scenery. Under the contract with Lisner, Miss Young said, the electrician is provided.

For today's performance, she said, five to eight college and high school youths will be used as stage hands. Union stage hands were employed at Lisner last March and April for the first performances there, the last two in the season's six-play series, she said.

Lisner seats more than 1500 persons, she said, and today's performances are "almost sold out."

Fire Gives Students Extra Day's Vacation

Berryville, Va., Nov. 21.—A fire which broke out in the boiler room of an elementary school building here yesterday morning put the community cannery out of commission but failed to reach the classrooms. The 160 students were back at their classes today after a one-day vacation.

NLRB Complaint Issued Against ITU

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday brought a formal unfair labor practice complaint against the International Typographical Union (AFL) based on charges filed October 7 by the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

The complaint, charging the union with violation of the Taft-Hartley law, will be heard by an NLRB trial examiner to determine if the NLRB itself should order the union to cease the alleged unfair labor practices. Such an order would be enforceable by the courts.

No date for the hearing has been set.

Jack G. Evans, NLRB regional director at Cincinnati, issued the complaint in behalf of Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the NLRB.

The ANPA allegations, which are repeated in the complaint, maintain principally that the ITU is insisting on continuation of the closed shop clause in new contracts with newspaper publishers despite a Taft-Hartley law ban against the closed shop.

The union is also accused in the complaint of sponsoring "featherbedding" and production "slowdowns" among union members employed by newspapers. Refusal to bargain also is charged against the union.

The ANPA represents 400 newspapers over the Nation. Cranston Williams of New York, ANPA general manager, said at the time the ANPA charges were filed that contracts with ITU printers covering 239 daily newspapers in 185 cities either expired or will expire by December 31.

Chicago Papers Late In Printers' Dispute

Chicago, Nov. 21 (AP).—Chicago's newspapers were circulated from five to nearly nine hours late today in a labor dispute with union compositors and the Times published a photo-engraved edition.

The usual first edition lockup time of the Times, a tabloid, is 7:15 a. m. Today the forms were closed at 12:20 p. m. News was typewritten, photographed and engraved for reproduction.

The Times, in a statement with the Sun, a morning newspaper, termed the situation in their joint composing room "a strike." The Sun and Times are owned by Marshall Field.

Both morning newspapers, the Tribune and the Sun, were nearly nine hours late on their first edition and the Sun used a photo-engraving process to produce its back page, saying a "slowdown" by printers prevented its being set in type.

Editions Delayed Third Day in Detroit

Detroit, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—First editions of the Detroit Times and News were delayed today for the third consecutive day in a contract dispute between union mailers and printers and the Detroit Newspaper Publishers Association.

The association, also representing the Detroit Free Press, sent telegrams to union officials protesting "studied and concerted slowdown tactics" which delayed publication of the three newspapers.

Meyers Called Liar and Snake In Lemarre's Defense of Wife as an officer of the Army Air Corps—a gentleman.

"He said he had some chivalry. He also said that he was sinking to a new low.

"I do not believe there are any words in the English language to describe the depths to which he has sunk.

"Meyers has initiated a smear campaign against myself, my wife, Thomas Readnower and his wife. His statements were entirely without foundation."

It was then that Lamarre, his face flushed and furious, demanded that Meyers do a bellycrawl out of the committee hearing room.

Day of Sensations

The husband's defense of his wife climaxed a sensation-packed day during which:

1. General Meyers admitted he had given false answers in two affidavits to the District of Columbia Department of Vehicles and Traffic, but defended himself on the ground the answers were only "routine."

2. Committee Counsel William P. Rogers warned the general the District officials did not consider perjury lightly and noted that on the back of the affidavits themselves a 10-year jail sentence for perjury was set forth.

3. Curnutt, trying to bolster up Meyers' account of how $19,000 of the salary Curnutt received from the Aviation Electric Co. came into a joint bank account of Mr. and Mrs. Meyers, admitted he had gone through some highly involved bookkeeping transactions to avoid payment of his income tax one year.

4. Warned he was confessing to an illegal act, Curnutt said he would have to pay the penalty for it, not the chairman of the committee.

Adds to His "Liar" List

5. Struggling to maintain his contention that he received no war profits from the Aviation Electric Co., Meyers brought up to at least 12, the number of persons he said had lied about him on the witness stand. The list includes Howard Hughes, the plane manufacturer, Vernon M. Knox, 2732 Porter st. nw., salesman for the Capital Cadillac Co., and Elman J. Taylor, Hyattsville, Md., garage manager for the Hotel 2400.

6. Meyers was asked if he thought all of these people, including Mrs. Neta Davis, who decorated his Hotel 2400 at a cost of $10,000, were in the "conspiracy" in which he said Lamarre and Readnower had engaged to attack him. He said he didn't claim that, but he just wanted to make the committee see what a lot of very strange testimony was being given.

Swears Lamarre Paid Bill

7. Meyers, who only Thursday said he had started the lushly profitable Aviation Electric Co. because Mrs. Lamarre was his "girl friend," insisted yesterday that not he but Lamarre had paid $10,000 to decorate the general's Hotel 2400 apartment. Lamarre had insisted on paying the bill, and he had "initially resisted," the general swore, while spectators tittered. Just because the checks were drawn on the Aviation Electric Co. it could not be said the company had paid for that job, Meyers said.

After Lamarre completed his scathing denunciation of the 52-year-old officer who dragged his wife's name into the Senate hearings, the committee recessed for the day.

Immediately, Meyers held an impromptu press conference.

In some ways it was as extraordinary as the one in which the general, three days before he testified under oath, had told reporters the details of the extra-marital affairs he claimed.

Sternly watching Meyers from the background were some grim-faced Army and Marine officers, who were intently listening to every word.

Called Without Precedent

One high-ranking officer told a reported that the general's defense in impugning the honor of a woman was without known precedent in the history of officers of such rank in the armed forces of the United States.

Court-Martial Demands Mount

There were mounting demands yesterday that the general be court-martialed, that the decorations of which he boasted in testimony, and his 46-a-month pension could be taken away from him.

Amvets, a World War II veterans' organization, demanded immediate revocation of the service medals—the Distinguished Service Medal and the Legion of Merit—and of his disability pension (nervous breakdown) of $461 a month. The Amvets pointed out that the top disability pension given an enlisted man with 100 per cent disability is $138 a month.

On the House floor, Representative Marion T. Bennett (R., Mo.) stormed:

"If the Army does not soon take action to court-martial that scoundrel I shall introduce legislation to require it."

The Army has already said it will take no action until the Senate committee finishes its inquiry.

But Attorney General Tom Clark has announced the Justice Department wil lask an indictment against Meyers in connection with income tax evasion.

At his press conference, Meyers was asked:

"Was it necessary, General Meyers, for you to drag in the name of still another woman and impugn her honor, in order to make a defense for yourself?"

The general indignantly sputtered it wasn't he who dragged in another women. He hadn't seen that memorandum of testimony his father-in-law had.

On the stand, the 53-year-old Curnutt, who is just a year older than his son-in-law swore that he had not shown his reatly typed memorandum to the general. It was typed up, he said, by Mrs. Meyers and his own wife.

Curnutt, the 40-dollar-a-week bus driver, who became the $12,000-a-year vice president in charge of production of the Aviation Electric Co., finally gave up the task to read the memorandum into the record.

Asked Whether He Can Read

He had so much trouble with his reading, that Chairman Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) asked:

"Can you read, Mr. Curnutt?"

The company executive fought against reading the prepared answer about Lamarre and his secretary, swore he could read but indicated he was having trouble with his heart.

He balked at spelling out words which he said he had printed on the typed paper. It was the date of one of his involved bookkeeping transactions—this time in connection with decorating the general's quarters at Wright Field.

The memorandum, as entered in the record, showed the words, "FAUL—1944," printed out in capitals.

Ferguson, gray-faced, weary and wearing an expression of disgust, refrained from pressing the witness.

Ordered Put in Evidence

The memorandum was ordered put into evidence when Francis D. Flanagan, assistant committee counsel, noticed that Curnutt was trying to put it back into his pocket.

"Let's see those notes," shot Ferguson. Curnutt threw them across the committee table.

The line of questioning was directed at showing who might have coached Curnutt to make the answers, particularly the one answer he had not made attacking Readnower's wife.

Ferguson picked up the questions that Amen had submitted on behalf of Meyers (Smith Brookhart, son of the former Senator from Iowa is also associated with counsel for Meyers, but has not been present at most hearings.

Questions Are Listed

The questions submitted by Amen were:

1. Please state exactly why you left the Aviation Electric Co.?

2. Please explain why you felt you earned every cent you got from the Aviation Electric Co.?

3. How many times have you seen Lamarre use the blue Cadillac? (The blue Cadillac has figured in testimony. It was paid for with an Aviation Electric Corp. check, but Meyers said it was the company's, not his, and Curnutt testified he bought it from the company and gave it to his daughter to drive.

4. Please state all the reasons why you left the Aviation Electric Co.? (Here Ferguson noted that the "all" was twice underscored.)

Meyers' In-Law Questioned

RAY A. CURNUTT, father-in-law of Maj. Gen. Bennett Meyers, telephones outside Senate War Investigating Committee room yesterday. He was questioned about a $12,000-a-year job as "vice president in charge of production" of the Aviation Electric Co. of Dayton

Mother Reports

Lamarre's Wife Brands Meyers Liar

Cincinnati, Nov. 21 (AP).—Mrs. Mildred Lamarre has denied as "absolutely untrue" Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers' testimony she was his "girl friend," her mother asserted today.

Mrs. Mildred Readnower of nearby Covington, Ky., informed a newsman by telephone:

"Mildred told me that the general's charges were absolutely untrue. She said she never was out with him alone in her life."

Meyers testified in Washington that he formed the Aviation Electric Corporation in Dayton, Ohio, and made Lamarre president because Mrs. Lamarre had been his girl friend from 1936 to 1940 "with the knowledge, approval and acquiescence of her husband."

'Getting Even,' She Claims

"It's terrible, outrageous and groundless," Mrs. Mildred Readnower, the mother told a reporter. "The things that General Meyers is saying are lies. He's just saying them to get even because my son-in-law told the truth about him."

"No husband would agree to his wife having an affair with another man, as General Meyers testified," Mrs. Readnower declared. "And furthermore, Mildred was too much in love with her husband to do anything like that.

"Mildred wrote me not long ago that she was as much in love with her husband now as she was the day she married him 11 years ago. They've never had any trouble."

The Lamarres were married in Covington but never lived there, Mrs. Readnower said.

"They resided in Dayton, Ohio, and during the war Mildred worked at Wright Field," she continued. "General Meyers was one of her bosses. The general was a good friend of her husband and the three sometimes went places together.

"Never Out Alone With Him"

Mrs. Readnower said she talked to her daughter by long-distance telephone today but declined to say where she was staying.

"Mildred told me that the general's charges were absolutely untrue," Mrs. Readnower declared. "She said that she never was out with him alone in her life."

The romance between Lamarre and his wife started at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, when both were students there, the mother said. Mrs. Lamarre graduated from Miami in 1933 and Lamarre a year later.

Mrs. Lamarre was listed in the Miami yearbook as one of the 12 most beautiful girls on the campus that year. She also was active in sorority circles and served as president of the senior women.

Declaration Heightens Love, Mrs. Meyers Says

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—The New York Post today quoted Mrs. Bennett E. Meyers as saying she "loves her husband more, if anything" because of the major general's testimony before the Senate War Investigating Committee concerning a former "girl friend."

She was quoted as telling the general "It would not bother me. The relationship with Mrs. Lamarre was your own business. It happened before you met me."

Karnes Asks Page County Recount

Luray, Va., Nov. 21.—The recent election of the Page County supervisor from the Shenandoah Iron Works district is being contested. Notice has been served on Mohler Foltz, Democrat, of Newport, and complaint filed in the clerk's office, that Fred Karnes will contest the election.

Foltz won over Karnes, who is a present member of the board. The complaint alleges that instead of Karnes being defeated by two votes, he was elected by 42. It asks that the votes be recounted and recanvassed, and that three circuit court judges be named to hear the case.

Karnes was at first reported elected by 11 votes. A recount, however, gave the election to Foltz by two votes. Karnes is asking for another recount.

Couple Hurl Kerosene, Wife Dead, Man Dying

Point Marion, Pa., Nov. 21 (AP). Mrs. Harold King, 32, died today and her coal miner husband, 36, was in critical condition following a quarrel in which they threw kerosene on each other, Coroner Lee R. Herrington reported.

Herrington quoted King as saying he tried to rescue his wife after she set her fuel-saturated clothing afire. With King carrying her, they emerged from their home like two blazing torches.

Anderson Goes to Congress For Anti-Inflation Action

premiums and penalties would be ineffective by themselves.

Anderson declined to go into detail about still another point in Mr. Truman's plan: legislation authorizing the Government to allocate scarce commodities among various users. He said he favored the device, but preferred to let future witnesses from his and other Federal departments spell out the details.

Anderson told the committee, headed by Senator Taft (R., Ohio), that the country could expect higher meat prices next spring. He forecast a great shortage of meat, and declared the situation would be tight throughout all of 1948. Meat will be "distressingly short" from February through May of next year, and possibly June, he said.

His forecast was that the average per capita meat consumption in this country would drop next year to 146 pounds, from a 1947 figure of 156 pounds. Next spring, consumption will be on an annual rate as low as 125 to 135 pounds, he is dicated.

Distillers' 'Holiday'

Anderson minimized the effect of the current distiller's "holiday," pointing out that liquor stocks at present are exceptionally large.

In asking for the right to impose margin requirements for speculative trading in commodity futures, Anderson said that if he had the power he would keep them, for the present, at 33 1-3 per cent. This is the rate now set by voluntary action of the Nation's most important grain exchanges.

In response to questions, he asked that the legislation to be drafted not fix any top limit on the margins which could be set. Extreme conditions of wild speculation might necessitate 100 per cent margins, he implied. But, he added, a limit of 50 per cent was all he thought would ever have to be applied.

On Buying Abroad

Anderson justified his second recommendations on grounds that "it is important to be able to make purchase arrangements (in foreign countries) in advance of actual planting to provide the incentive to production over and above what would otherwise take place."

He also requested a Congressional resolution for an appropriation of from one-half to one million dollars for the rest of the fiscal year. It would be used to push the Administration's campaign among farmers voluntarily to conserve scarce foods.

At a press conference earlier in the day, Mr. Truman declined to be drawn into detailed discussion of his anti-inflation recommendations. He refused to comment on a remark of Taft that the program was "totalitarian."

In response to questions about price control, rationing, and export controls, the President said the details would be presented in hearings before congressional committees.

On control of commodity speculation, he said he wanted the same authority over commodity exchanges that the Government now exercises over the New York Stock Exchange.

U. N. Accord Speeds Plans For Palestine

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Nov. 21.—A United Nations group, trying to surmount objections to a previous plan for partition of Palestine, tonight reached full agreement on several changes believed to be acceptable to the British.

Herschel Johnson of the United States and Semyon Tsarapkin of Russia bot hannounced their governments had agreed on the changes.

Warking behind closed doors, the nine-nation group achieved the compromise which will be given to the full committee tomorrow. No announcement of the changes were made public, but it was learned they provided:

1. The British mandate is to end as soon as possible, but not later than August 1. The Security Council will not be required to give permission to the British if they choose to end the mandate before August 1, as demanded by Russia.

Withdrawal Date Set

2. British forces are to be progressively withdrawn and evacuation is to be completed not later than August 1. Independence for Jewish and Arab states is to come 60 days after the complete evacuation, but not later than October 1.

3. The British are to notify a five-nation Palestine commission, which is to set up provisional councils of government in evacuated areas, as far in advance as possible of the date of the mandate's end. The British are also to notify the commission when they are about to evacuate an area so that a local government may be organized. Those areas are to be turned over to the commission progressively.

Complies With Policy

Affect of the tonight's changes is to comply with the British announcement that they would have no part in implementing a partition plan unless it is acceptable to Jeews and Arabs. The Arabs are vehemently opposed ot partition. The changes will permit the British to lay down their mandate without having participated in formation of any successor government.

Second Suspect Is Charged in Assault-Robbery

A second suspect in the September 2 assault-robbery of Charles K. Raker, Washington salesman, was formally charged with robbery by Prince Georges County authorities at Hyattsville yesterday.

Held under $1000 bond after being turned over to county authorities by District police was Earl Childress, 710 6th st. sw., one of two men accused of beating and robbing Raker after forcing him to drive from a downtown tavern to a secluded road near the Prince Georges Country Club. The other suspect, Samuel H. Craddock, 23 of the same address, was arrested Thursday.

Raker, a novelty salesman at 257 Rock Creek Church rd. nw., has identified both men as his assailants, according to Prince Georges police. Preliminary hearing is set before Judge Alan Bowie in Hyattsville Police Court at 10 a. m. Monday.

Turkish Soldier Reported Killed By Bulgarian

Istanbul, Turkey, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—A reliable Turkish official said today that one Turkish soldier was killed when he and a Turkish officer inadvertently crossed the Bulgarian frontier and were fired upon by Bulgarian troops.

He said Turkish soldiers on the border exchanged a number of shots with the Bulgarians, thus enabling the officer to escape. It was expected that Turkey would protest the alleged Bulgarian action through the United Nations.

(In Sofia, the Bulgarian Home Ministry announced that one Turkish officer and one soldier entered Bulgarian territory November 15 and attempted to kidnap Bulgarian frontier guards.

(The announcement said the Bulgarian guards received reinforcements and caught the two Turks but that Turkish soldiers opened fire and aided their escape.)

Hunt for Nine In Navy Plane Crash Ended

San Diego, Calif., Nov. 21 (AP).—Two survivors of the crash of a Navy Lockheed Neptune medium bomber were landed by submarine here today as search for nine others in the crew was abandoned and they were declared lost at sea, the Eleventh Naval District announced.

Picked up by the submarine USS Pomadon before wreckage of the plane sank 100 miles west of here were Lieut. Comdr. August W. Elliott, jr., of Florence, S. C., and Lieut. Charles D. Walker of San Diego, one of the pilots.

Names of missing were withheld pending notification of kin.

The plane crashed while operating with surface vessels in fleet maneuvers. Five officers and six enlisted men were aboard.

Grains Bought Despite Price

By The Associated Press

The continuing upward price perssure which sent grains higher on the Chicago Board of Trade today have not resulted in curtailment of consumer food buying, a survey has disclosed.

In its retail sales survey for the week ended Wednesday, Dun and Bradstreet reported that food purchases rose slightly, with dairy products, frozen foods and utility cuts of meat in very large demand. Increased purchases of canned goods, sugar, confectionery and bakery products were noted.

It said retail sales were moderately above the preceding week and 11 to 15 per cent ahead of the corresponding week a year ago.

There was considerable gift buying with toys, cameras and luggage among the most popular items. Lamps, small tables and small heaters were in heavy demand and there was a spurt in the buying of branded electric irons in some sections.

Meanwhile, the Associated Press weighed wholesale price index of 35 commodities yesterday reached a new all-time high of 201.05 compared with a high point of 169.72 last year and a 1926 average of 100.

December and September corn futures reached new seasonal highs today, as did March and May soybeans.

During the early Board of Trade transactions, wheat sold 2½ to 3¼ cents higher, December $3.06. Corn was 1¾ to 2 cents up, December $2.49½, and oats were ½ to 1⅛ cents higher, December $1.23 1/4. Soybeans were up the 8-cent daily limit, March $3.89.

Hogs were steady to 50 cents a hundredweight higher today at Chicago, with the top load selling for $25.35, 10 cents above the practical top. With choice cattle absent, the beef animal market was steady to 25 cents lower, with $27 for a part load of good fed heifers the limit.

Reich Workers Strike

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 21 (AP). About 100,000 workers in Mannheim staged a one-hour strike today to protest what trade union leaders described as the city authorities' failure to provide the people with potatoes in amounts equaling the minimum set for the United States occupation zone.

Blum Loses In Assembly

to America is a warmonger and tool of American trusts.

Blum understood this threat but he also seemed to see danger in De Gaulle, who he felt, was headed for personal dictatorship.

Blum made a strong appeal for unity built about his conception of the unity this country requires today. It was a plea for the 'third force"—for people who liked neither Communists nor General de Gaulle, for people who hoped to avoid civil war between them.

At times he had everyone in the Assembly with him except the Communists, and never more than when he spoke of the Marshall Plan and economic help from the American people.

Blum asked for a coalition government without naming the men who would join him, for a wide government of "public safety." He spoke in general terms—against inflations, against political strikes, in favor of the rights or labor, for stable prices.

Members liked it when he said that "international Communism has declared war on French democracy. They were not so enthusiastic when he spoke against "the personal power of one man," meaning what he believes to be the ambition of General de Gaulle.

His own Socialist Party was solidly with him. The Popular Republicans voted with him except for a few men who believe in the inevitability of the general's return to power. He picked up a few more votes from the center and right of center, and that was about all.

British Exports Rise

London, Nov. 21 (U.P.)—United Kingdom exports rose $36,800,000 in October to $432,800,000, it was announced today—the highest since July and the second highest since July, 1920. Imports totaled $645,600,000.

Truman Wouldn't Halt Exports to Russia

By The Associated Press

President Truman said yesterday he sees no reason to halt shipment of United States machinery to Russia in the face of congressional demands that the traffic be stopped lest it strengthen Soviet military might.

The President made his views known in reply to news conference questions stemming from the disclosure from Department of Commerce records, that Russia is importing locomotives, freight cars and other equipment from the United States at the rate of 150 million dollars a year.

Asked about criticisms of this export volume, Mr. Truman said the Russians have a purchasing commission here and that it is buying machinery needed for repairing dams and for farm work.

He said he saw no reason to stop such exports now.

Shipment of heavy machinery and other goods which might help the Soviet bloc has been assailed repeatedly during congressional hearings on the question of extending economic aid to western European countries.

Representative Welchel (R., Ohio,) chairman of the House Merchant Marine Committee, demanded last Monday that the United States "stop shipping everything to Russia" and called for the immediate return of 95 merchant ships turned over to the Soviets, he said, under Lend-Lease.

"It is not consistent with Secretary (of State) Marshall's stop-communism program for us to keep sending supplies to Russia," the committee chairman added in an interview.

Secretary of Commerce Harriman told the House Foreign Affairs Committee last week he believed this country "should not ship materials which are a direct contribution to the eastern European countries."

Latest Commerce Department figures showed that the Russians bought 216 freight cars between April and October of this year, but the names of the Americans who sold the cars were not given.

Officials said the sellers presumably purchased them from the War Assets Administration.

The cars all were specially built for Russia's broad-guage railroads, whose rails are six inches farther apart than in this country, and for that reason they apparently were allowed to be shipped even though freight cars have been under export license control since July 1 because of the domestic shortage.

A breakdown showed that Russia's $113,700,000 in purchases from the United States during the first nine months of this year included, among other items:

$18,400,000 for machine tools.
$10,700,000 for mining, well-drilling and pumping equipment.
$6,200,000 for construction and conveying machinery.

Cabinet Waits While Truman Meets Daughter

Margaret, home from a singing tour, embraced her dad as he walked down the platform with Mrs. Truman to greet her. She came by train from Tulsa, Okla.

The Mohican Mangled

Even Hawk-Eye's An Anachronism

By Richard L. Coe

PRIMITIVE IS THE WORD for Columbia's new version of James Fenimore Cooper's thundering old novel, "The Last of the Mohicans." They're calling it "The Last of the Redmen," but please don't leap to any anti-Communist conclusions; the Metropolitan's feature is so titled to avoid confusion with Eagle Lion's current reissue of "The Last of the Mohicans" that came out in 1936.

Now that we've got that cleared up we can get back to the Metropolitan's tenant which, truth to tell, ain't done right by James Fenimore. It may please the kiddies, but if you once spelled out Cooper's grand story by the light of the moon, you'll be thoroughly let down.

For one thing, take the canoes. They're the sort you hire for so much a night up at Cedar Lake. Sure, they've been painted up in Iroquois colors but an honest Injun wouldn't give 'em paddle room.

As a matter of fact, you get the claustrophobic notion that the whole picture has been shot in the confines of a fair-sized picnic grounds. When you watch Major Heyward escorting General Munro's daughters through upper New York State, you have the feeling the Good Humor man has just gone by.

Your old hero Hawk-Eye, as played by Michael O'Shea, seems to have become a backwoods version of Barry Fitzgerald, which isn't so much the fault of O'Shea as it is of the scriptwriters. These boys, Herbert Delmas and George H. Plympton, certainly didn't waste any labor on their assignment.

Buster Crabbe is pretty good as Magua, the Iroquois whose punishment for a firewater binge made him a two-timing villain. With his pate shaved and much waving of the brawny arms, Crabbe does suggest the character Cooper described so forcefully. Jon Hall's hero is certainly sappy, again not so much the fault of that none too sterling performer as of the screen writers. As the Munro daughters, Evelyn Ankers and Julie Bishop read their foolish lines foolishly.

Yes, tens of Indians bite the dust to every white man and Hall's battles with them do credit to Superman. The picture is in that tint called Cinecolor, a process which does not seem to be under the personal supervision of Mrs. Natalie Cinecolor.

THE YOUNGSTERS have a pack of entertainment to choose from on today's calendar. There are two performances of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" at Lisner Auditorium, one at 10:30 this morning, the other at 2 p. m. Then there are showings of the Children's Film Library series at the Warner neighborhood houses: the Silver, Uptown, Tivoli, Penn, Beverly, Avalon, Calvert, Kennedy and Sheridan.

"CRIME AND PUNISHMENT," for whose stage production John Gielgud will be turning over his "Medea" role to Dennis King in two weeks, is Community Education's weekend film. This is the French version of a decade ago. The film goes on at 8 p. m. Sunday at 914 20th st.

Remake of 'Escape Me Never' at Warner

By Leo Brady

"Escape Me Never," another film which served Elizabeth Bergner in a previous version, has arrived at the Warner in its 1947 Warner Bros. remake, with Lupino in for Bergner and Errol Flynn, Eleanor Parker and Gig Young making up the remainder of that confused quartet.

Ida Lupino

Originally a novel by Margaret Kennedy, this is the saga of Gemma, a simple if somewhat misguided hoyden, who is so constant that, it appears, she's been faithful to two men. The story relates how she manages to hold on to Sebastian, a wayward musician, whose eyes tend to stray from the staff to the distaff with alarming frequency.

The Bergner version spent most of its time being poignant, so it's a relief to report that Director Peter Godfrey does all he can to brighten the story and manages to insert several charming light comedy sequences. He is never able to argue successfuly with his material, however, and the chances are you'll view Gemma's travails with a dry eye and a detached manner.

Certain obvious distractions divert you: Flynn reforms rather abruptly—practically spilling Miss Parker off his lap when repentance strikes him—and Gemma's baby (who uses his hands like George M. Cohan and proves to be a clumsy prop in love scenes), gets sick with incredible convenience.

Miss Lupino gets into an Alpine jumper and tends to close doors with her feet, but otherwise avoids looking like Bergner. The amazing thing about her performance is that when emotion is involved she ceases being the brash, light-hearted gamin and becomes fully as much a lady as her rival, Eleanor Parker—who is as genteel as Jane Austen if not so puritanical.

The performance of this ballet occupies about half a reel and seemed to be as good as most movie ballets until Milada Mladova got tangled up in gauze and left in a huff, blaming the score. She wanted to insert some Tschaikovsky, a composer who had, after all, troubles of his own.

Some friendly faces are in the cast: Albert Basserman, who accepts all parts with becoming resignation, Isobel Elsom and Reginald Denny, for three. Miss Lupino is the only one of the principals who holds her own with them—in all three of her roles.

ESCAPE ME NEVER." Warner Brothers release. Screenplay by Thomas Williamson and Lenore Coffee from the novel and play by Margaret Kennedy. Directed by Peter Godfrey. Music by Erich Korngold. At the Warner.

8% Rent Raise Is Approved For 160 Units

Rent increases of approximately 8.09 per cent were recommended yesterday for 160 apartment units at Woodley Park Towers, 2737 Devonshire pl. nw., the Rent Control Administration announced.

Examiner James G. Tyson said his recommendation would boost rents for $47.50-a-month apartments to $51.50 and $250-a-month units to $270.

The owners, Ell & Kay Building and Investment Co., had asked a 10.6 per cent hike to bring in $20,469 more a year. Tyson estimated the recommended raise would bring the company $15,376 more annually.

Higher rents are needed, the company said, to cover increased operation and maintenance costs, higher taxes, and capital improvements.

The new rates will go into effect November 30 unless either the owners or tenants appeal for reconsideration by Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell.

Fairlington Tenants Asked to Take Rent Hike

The 3500 tenants of the Fairlington housing development have been asked to sign new leases calling for rental increases of from 9 to 14 per cent, William Zeigler, general manager of the Fair-mac Corp. announced yesterday.

Tenants who agree to sign the new leases will be guaranteed stabilized rent at the increased level for two years, Ziegler said, and the new rental will not come in force until March, 1948. Increases range from $5 for the 1-bedroom units to $10 for 6-room units.

Present Fairlington tenants who wish to stay on a month-to-month arrangement may do so, he said, pointing out that the new leases are "entirely voluntary."

The Fairlington development was purchased from the Federal Government last October by the Fair-mac Corp.

Under the new schedule, the four-room, one-bedroom apartment rental would range from $63.50 to $67.50; for four room, two-story duplex, $74 to $79; for five-room, two-bedroom apartments, $74.50 to $79; for five-room, two-story duplex apartments, $86 to $89.50; for six-room, three-bedroom apartments, $88.50 to $89.50, and for six room, two-story duplex units, $97.50 to $99.50.

Arnold Line Sues Estate Of Founder

The Arnold Bus Co. started court action yesterday to secure $88,000 from the estate of the company's founder.

The company, officially known as the Washington, Virginia and Maryland Coach Co., filed notice of a motion for judgment for the amount in Fairfax County Circuit Court yesterday.

The notice alleges that Leon Arnold, founder and, until his death last year in a traffic accident, majority stock holder in the Arnold Lines, received "without authority" $88,000 from the company during a period from 1941 to 1945.

Defendants listed are Joseph L. Arnold, Leon's son and now president of the company, Mrs. Louise E. Counselman and Mrs. Dorothy A. Duncan, Leon's daughters, and the Arlington Trust Co.

The company alleges Arnold accepted the money "knowing it was paid to him from the estate of the plaintiff corporation without any authority from said corporation." A breakdown of the payments shows they were made at irregular intervals during the four-year period in amounts varying from $1000 to $21,699.61.

The motion will be presented in court December 15, the notice said, or as soon thereafter as possible.

Phone Deal Benefits Told at Hearing

Richmond, Va., Nov. 21 (AP).—Contractual relations with Western Electric Co. were beneficial in many ways to companies included in the Bell Telephone System, three witnesses told the State Corporation Commission today.

Their testimony was given as part of the hearing on a petition of Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. of Virginia for rate increases.

Following presentation to the SCC of evidence it had requested on November 6 on the Virginia company's relationship with Western Electric, the hearing was adjourned until 10 a. m. December 1.

Testifying today were A. L. Lanigan, Robert W. Thomas and Burton R. Young. Lanigan is assistant vice president of the Virginia company and also of three other C. & P. companies operating in the District of Columbia, Maryland and West Virginia.

Thomas identified himself as engineer in charge of the price survey group in the department of operation and engineering of Western Electric and Young is chief statistician of the company, which manufactures and supplies telephone apparatus and devices which the operating companies use.

Lanigan described certain features of C. & P.'s standard supply contract with Western Electric; outlined the obligations it places upon Western, and added by way of explanation:

"Under the contract the Virginia company assumes no obligation to purchase any material or service from Western . . .

"Western prices to the Virginia company are required to be as low as to its most favored customers for like materials and services under comparable conditions . . ."

The Virginia Company, Lanigan asserted, is in a position to determine whether or not the price charged is a reasonable one because it does some equipment engineering and installation work on smaller jobs itself.

4-Car Pile-Up Causes Police 'Collision'

At 7:56 a. m., yesterday, an auto crossed the 14th St. Bridge to the Virginia shore, started down U. S. Highway 1, then stopped suddenly. Three cars behind it promptly piled up against each other's bumpers.

For the drivers, it meant a slight shakeup, one mild injury, and a total of $640 damages.

For police, it raised one more question mark to a perennial problem—who has police jurisdiction over the patchwork quilt of Federal land holdings in Arlington County.

Facts Are Uncovered

A check with county police records, and with various Federal Government agencies reveals the following facts:

There are eight separate governmental jurisdictions in Arlington County, operating with nine separate police forces.

Yesterday's four-car accident, which occurred 100 yards south of the Hot Shoppe Restaurant on United States 1, was checked by Arlington police, United States Park Police, and by Pentagon M. P.'s.

After a huddle and a check of boundary lines, both Arlington and Park Police declared the accident to be out of their respective bailiwicks and on Pentagon Building soil.

To Handle or Not to Handle

And last night, Army M. P.'s were stil considering whether or not to handle the case.

In Arlington, the Army runs Fort Myer, the Navy the Naval Annex and radio transmitter, the Marines, Henderson Hall. Washington National Airport is under the Commerce Department.

United States Park Police have jurisdiction with Arlington over George Washington Memorial pkwy., sole jurisdiction over Mount Vernon blvd. The Public Building Administration runs Arlington Farms.

And the District of Columbia has control of created land east of the boundary channel under an old ruling extending D. C. boundaries up to the high water mark on the Virginia shore.

Within these jurisdictions, the following separate police forces operate: Army MPs, Marine guards, PBA guards, Arlington Police, Park Police, District of Columbia Police, special Airport Police, and a special squad under the Army Quartermaster Department to guard National Cemetery. The Potomac Yards has its own police force.

British Strike Spreads

London, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—Shipping confederation unions today called a half-day strike of "at least 10,000 dock workers" for tomorrow in the port of London to protest "police brutality against pickets of striking hotel workers."

France: What Next?

Whether President Auriol can find a leader in France other than General de Gaulle who can win a vote of confidence in the National Assembly is extremely problematical. A Premier-designate must amass 309 of the membership of 618. Anti-Communist and anti-Gaulle Leon Blum, who threw all his great prestige into the task, failed by nine votes. General de Gaulle's insistence that the constitution is unworkable appears to be demonstrated beyond the shadow of a doubt. A vote of confidence requires an absolute majority. Yet there are eight or more parties represented in the Assembly, with not enough cohesion left among the center parties to support a leader dedicated to a government of public safety. And President Auriol has no authority to dissolve the Chamber. All that can now be done, unless another public man essays the seemingly impossible job of mobilizing the middle without either Communist or De Gaulle support, is for the Assembly to entertain a motion to amend the constitution giving the executive the requisite authority to dissolve it. If the Assembly could muster two thirds of the membership back of such an amendment, then the amendment would be taken to the people in a plebiscite. Otherwise the deadlock is apparently complete. Barring a miracle, the sands of the Fourth Republic have almost run out and De Gaulle's ideas are likely to prevail, even if he himself elects for the time being to stay in the background. But the process will entail, we fear, a good deal of turbulence in view of the Communist war on order.

Chief Of Staff

President Truman in our opinion could have made no better appointment as Army Chief of Staff than Gen. Omar N. Bradley. The fact that General Bradley has long been regarded as the heir apparent to General Eisenhower by no means diminishes our gratification. He is a scholar of his profession, a man utterly without pretense, at once, mirabile dictu, both a doughboys' general and a generals' general. He is a fitting successor to the two men of unusually broad caliber who have preceded him, Generals Marshall and Eisenhower. In his job of tying together the postwar military establishment and continuing democratic reforms he will be able to command the confidence of Congress and the Army alike.

The critics of General Bradley are largely confined to the glorifiers of the late Gen. George S. Patton, jr., who felt that Bradley held him down. We believe that the ultimate record will show this to be a narrow judgment and that Bradley's seeming caution was warranted by the magnitude of his responsibility. Indeed, Bradley's accomplishments give convincing proof that he is a man of sensitivity, boldness and imagination. Moreover, he is an administrator, and he could have had no more critical test of his ability in this regard than his stewardship in the Veterans' Administration.

It can be said truthfully that General Bradley is the man who more than anyone else restored the Veterans' Administration to a status of respectability. An almost superhuman job was thrust upon him in the summer of 1945. He did it like a soldier, that is to say, without flinching. He was charged with expanding the operations of the VA fourfold, with providing decent medical care, with administering the new GI Bill of Rights. There is still some distance to go before all the knots are untied in such problems as insurance and education and training. Even up to the end General Bradley was often thwarted by the conservatives of the so-called VA old guard. But the large measure of respect which almost every former serviceman holds for the Veterans' Administration is a deserved tribute to the effectiveness of General Bradley and the men he assembled under him.

The task now falls to Carl R. Gray, vice president of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway. His appointment was a surprise, and he is relatively unknown in public life. However, he acquitted himself capably during the war as the director of military railway operations in North Africa and later in Europe. He has the requisite toughness for the job, as well as courage and administrative talent. His selection should satisfy the demands of the old-line veterans' groups for a businessman instead of a strictly military man or a Government official. It is regrettable that Mr. Gray will not have at his side Maj. Gen. Paul R. Hawley, the VA's able medical director who was the sparkplug of much of the vast improvement in VA's medical success. However, General Hawley has a well qualified successor in Dr. Paul B. Magnuson, one of the country's top surgeons. Like General Bradley, Mr. Gray has a tremendous assignment, and he will need all the competent help he can get.

Aid From Others

In an address before the New York Board of Trade, Secretary Anderson inquired whether it "wouldn't make good sense for us to enter into arrangements with countries able to expand production of food needed in Europe beyond that which we can furnish." The question is purely rhetorical, for the facts show that the only practical answer is an emphatic yes. Both the Krug and Harriman reports on our agricultural resources carry warnings of the danger of too great reliance upon the United States by food-deficit countries. Although we have been blessed with abundant grain harvests during the past few years, our high food production has, in the words of the Secretary of Agriculture, been a "winning gamble against nature."

Despite the recent improvement in winter wheat crop prospects, the outlook is for a much smaller wheat crop next year. Furthermore, even with the average weather during the next three or four years, a sharp drop in grain export capacity is to be expected, while a severe drought might cut exports to zero. In planning a long-range program these possibilities must be considered, as Secretary Anderson warns, for the sake of those who need our help as well as in justice to ourselves. As regards not only food but also other commodities in short supply in the United States, it will be in our own interest to permit countries participating in the Marshall Plan to draw upon outside sources of supply.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has just approved an interim foreign-aid bill permitting up to 25 per cent of the amount authorized for spending to be used for procurement of supplies outside the United States, its Territories and possessions. The bill further provides that procurement of petroleum and petroleum products shall be made "to the maximum extent practicable" from petroleum resources outside the United States. Senator Vandenberg explains that such outside purchases will be to our advantage as a means of preventing possible creation of domestic shortages with resultant inflation of prices. The same arguments apply with added force to the more ambitious long-range aid program contained in the Marshall Plan.

We doubt, however, the wisdom of imposing any predetermined upper limit on the amount of Marshall Plan dollars to be spent outside the United States. The program must be flexible to permit of effective administration, since there is no way of anticipating the countless changes in demand and the shifts in sources of supply that may occur over a period of several years. One or two examples cited by the Harriman Committee illustrate the complexity and the uncertainty of the outlook. The Harriman report points out, for instance, that Far Eastern areas formerly supplying fats and oils would, if rehabilitated, provide one of the quickest and most important methods of increasing European food supplies. If the political obstacles to such rehabilitation could be overcome, dollars spent in those regions might be more beneficially employed than they would be if spent for food shipments from this country. The nations participating in the Paris Conference on the Marshall Plan also are counting upon the reappearance of grain export surpluses from Russia and eastern Europe. If their hopes are disappointed, as now appears likely, it will be all the more necessary to supplement inadequate grain exports from the United States by actively encouraging production of substitute foods in other parts of the world for export.

Such ramifications of the Marshall Plan impose an unwelcome but unavoidable responsibility on us for controlling and supervising, to some extent at least, the spending of dollar aid funds in supply areas outside the United States. Otherwise, those funds might be dissipated by profiteering nations who might be tempted to follow Argentina's practice of exploiting hunger by charging excessive prices. Secretary Anderson's suggestion that we might enter into agreements with countries able to expand their production of foods in short supply points to a possible method of handling the problem presented by the spending of Marshall Plan dollars not only for food but also for other commodities.

Before President Truman went to Rio we ourselves suggested the preliminary exploration of an inter-American agreement and urged upon him the opportunity he had at the Latin-American Conference of sounding a new call for cooperation. Might it not be possible on the basis of periodic surveys of western European needs and resources for our administrative officials in cooperation with representatives of the Marshall Plan countries to enter into agreements with supplying countries that would insure fair prices for the selling countries while safeguarding the interests of buyers? Congress will doubtless wish to lay down certain general principles in regard to this aspect of the Marshall Plan, but it would be most unfortunate if it were to try to impose rigid restrictions on the character, direction, and amount of such buying.

Luckman Resigns

Charles Luckman's job as chairman of the Citizens Food Committee has been no bed of roses. Mr. Luckman was brought into an emergency situation that was plainly forseeable and had been developing for several months. He was expected to produce immediate and widespread compliance with the voluntary food saving program with totally inadequate preparation. He was, figuratively speaking, thrown to the wolves before he got his feet on the ground. He was saddled with a committee of unwieldy size which in several instances worked at cross-purposes with the measures Mr. Luckman sought to promote. He also had to cope with the proclivity of certain high officials for pulling the rug out from under him with inopportune statements. Altogether it is hard to imagine more unfavorable conditions under which a private citizen could be asked to serve the Government.

In view of all this, as Mr. Luckman relinquishes his chairmanship to return to the presidency of Lever Brothers, we think he deserves a vote of thanks. The Citizens Food Committee is well on its way toward its immediate goal of conserving 100 million bushels of grain. It is true that a large part of the success to date must be attributed to the culling out of poultry flocks and to his promotion of the distillery shutdown. These measures aside, Mr. Luckman in his difficult post exhibited an admirable amount of courage, industry and zeal. As the Department of Agriculture assumes the task of continuing and broadening the food conservation effort—and the job is only begun, since the shortage promises to be even more serious next year—the first thing it should do is to make sure it profits by Mr. Luckman's not entirely happy experience.

Meyers Scandal

It is not necessary to go beyond Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers' own words to emphasize the scandal and disgrace that he has brought upon the Army Air Forces. "I am going to drop to a new low—even lower than the accusations that have been brought out against me in this hearing," the general told the Ferguson Committee, before publicly revealing his relations with the wife of the "dummy" president of the general's Aviation Electric Corp. He did this, he said, only in the interest of telling "the whole truth" to the committee. But his sordid tale unmistakably suggests that he is trying to hide behind a skirt—that he expects the country to forgive moral corruption more readily than it will forgive corrupt conduct of his office as "deputy chief of air staff, Army Air Forces, in charge of Army aircraft procurement, production, maintenance, supply and air transport."

In our opinion, General Meyers has not detracted one whit from his culpability. He says that he did not organize the Aviation Electric Co., to get war contracts, but as a means of getting Mrs. Lamarre, his "girl friend," to return to Dayton from California. But the testimony indicates that the company did get war contracts; it did make exorbitant profits from contracts placed with it by an aircraft manufacturer at his suggestion. To be sure, the general says that he "never received one cent of profits" from the company, but this flatly contradicts the testimony of Bleriot Lamarre, which seems to be supported by the committee's examination of the two men's bank accounts. The fact that his love affair inspired General Meyers' scheme appears only to add a new layer of corruption on top of what was already a stinking mess.

We do not suppose for a moment that this sort of corruption was general in the Army Air Forces, and we hope the public will not get such an impression. But the fact that General Meyers was able to get away with it through the war years and then to be retired on a pension of $461 a month is a very grave reflection on the Air Forces. Indeed, this central scandal is only one of several in which General Meyers in involved, if the testimony before the Ferguson Committee proves to be accurate. The full story of what his superiors knew of these activities is yet to be told. But the mere fact that they failed to investigate after charges against General Meyers had been made is sufficient cause for some very red faces. Is this another revelation of the club spirit in the armed services? The least that should be demanded as a result of this investigation is a reorganization of the military's investigative machinery so as to eliminate irregularities and abuses before they grow into full-fledged scandals.

Admitting DPs

There is a tragic tendency, in the midst of our immediate concern over general European relief, to forget about the displaced persons problem which was left suspended when Congress adjourned last July. The members of Congress who went abroad and had a first-hand view of the displaced persons camps returned emphatic in their insistence that the problem be dealt with generously, in the traditional American spirit of asylum, and without any further delay. Their appeals have now been fortified by an unequivocal expression of support from Senator Robert A. Taft. If the Republican leader will match his words with action, the refugees may yet hope for liberation before enduring another winter of despair.

"I believe," said Mr. Taft the other day, "that the United States should assume its share of the displaced persons remaining in Europe, and admit them to this country, if the total number does not exceed the total deficiency in legal quotas. I believe the condition calls for immediate action, and so Congress should act without waiting for any international conference, of the IRO or otherwise." It is worth noting as a heartening sign in this connection that the executive committee of the American Legion has at last relaxed its opposition to admission of European displaced persons into the United States and has recommended that they be allowed to come here in numbers "proportionate to America's fair share."

The Ferguson bill and the Stratton bill have both been examined by the appropriate congressional committees. Either could be quickly enacted and set in motion to meet the emergency condition without in any way distracting Congress from its main task. Let us not wait too long for the thawing of our prejudices to release the natural flow of our sympathies.

"If I Ever Find This Guy I'll Arrest Him On Sight"

White-Collar Casualties

By Malvina Lindsay

Inflation's Pincers

CONGRESS is shortly expected to hear that with present prices it takes around $3000 annually for a city family of four to live "modestly." Yet two out of three families take in less than that. Many of these are from the white-collar class, that has given so much stability and aspiration to the Nation.

When Congress starts grappling with the price problem, it will find from reports and surveys presented it how hard inflation's pincers have clamped on the many Americans with small salaries and fixed incomes.

These include chiefly school teachers, preachers, office workers, clerks, salespersons, G. I. students, and elderly persons, especially widows living on small pensions, annuities, savings and inheritances. They also include the self-supporting working girl living alone, over whom budgeteers annually tax their brains to decide how much income she needs to live "decently"—in every sense of the word. Estimates now vary in different places, with the vote largest for around $35 a week.

Both men and women on small salaries living alone have been especially hit by inflation, much more so than family members who can pool their expenses. Furnished rooms are rising in cost in many cities. So are restaurant and boarding-house meals, and for women there is the added expense of the "new look." And salaries in some white-collar fields are showing a tendency to drop.

HOW IS the white-collar girl on $150 a month or less meeting the inflation pinch?

She is tending to defer marriage, say YWCA workers, and is curtailing on meat-protein food, movies, beauty shops, medical and dental care and—finally—clothes. Young men are retracting on marriage plans, dates, clothes, haircuts, medical and dental care and—finally—food.

The traditional white-collar family is penny pinching in new ways. Because of its complex needs and ambitions, it has especially felt the 63 per cent increase in living costs since 1939. Its salary, now likely to range from $2000 to $4000—and shrinking daily in purchasing power—goes first for rent (it takes no chance on that), then for food, which may take from 40 to 50 per cent of income, and which increasingly includes more spaghetti and meat balls. It cuts down on clothes and probably contributes to the present bargain-basement boom.

But other self-denials work the greatest change in white-collar standards and indirectly affect the quality of American life. If the family owns its home, it probably lets property repairs wait. It may even lose its home, eventually become a part of the restless populace that takes root in no community. It quits trying to save, lets insurance policies, including those for the children's education, lapse. It neglects seeing doctor and dentist. It stays home from concerts, lectures, quits buying books, drops out of organizations, lapses away from church, lives a narrower, skimpier and more drab and self-centered life.

YET THIS is the family whose steady employment, mental ambitions, cultural interests, community activity have made it a bulwark of American society. This is the type of family whose children have filled the high schools and colleges and have often become the leaders of the Nation.

Recently the country was taking satisfaction that at last its white-collar class was gaining in income and security. The Federal Reserve Board reported annual incomes of white-collar workers had made marked gains in 1946 over 1945. But skyrocketing living costs the last year have canceled these gains.

There is little likelihood any future wage increases will extend beyond industrial to white-collar groups. Yet industrial workers constitute only a little more than one third of the Nation's 41 million nonagriculturally employed. There is little or no chance those living on fixed incomes will get hold of any more money. The only hope of the white collar set is a halt to inflation.

Soldiers' Home

The writer of the letter "Soldiers' Home" in The Washington Post of October 31, seems to make a comparison between the land comprising the United States Soldiers' Home and Central Park in New York.

Central Park is the only large park area in Manhattan, and with the density of New York's population, housed to a large extent in skyscrapers, certainly one large park area for recreation is required. One can be well assured that at the time of its establishment no important commercial or industrial values were jeopardized nor was New York's ambition for supremacy in the field of commercial or industrial development hindered in any way by establishing the large area of Central Park.

Washington, on the other hand, has had no such ambitions and its park promoters have had quite a free hand in seeing to it that the city has had sufficient parks and open spaces. One does not need to travel far to see trees, parks and woodland areas in and around Washington.

At the time Soldiers' Home was established at its present location, the home was situated out in the country far enough from the small city to the south of it for farming to be carried on as part of its maintenance. Now the city has grown far beyond the home into a great metropolitan area, no longer is it a proper location for dairy farming when the District is badly in need of additional taxable land.

With the McMillan Park and the filtration plant to the south of Soldiers' Home, there is already too much land in this area left open and off the tax books. Situated side by side as they are, neither one supplies the public with its full worth as a park area. Therefore one should be removed for good planning.

My opinion is that the Soldiers' Home should be removed from this central location, and I think there is no better site for a National Soldiers' Home than the present site of the National Training School for Boys located at Fort Lincoln on a high point at the edge of the District with a sweeping view of the city. The boys' school should be transferred elsewhere, and the farming part of the Soldiers' Home moved to the Beltsville farm of the Agriculture Department with the dairy products sent in from there to the home.

Truman Price Plan

I am for the Truman way of combating price increases. I prefer price control, wage control, and rationing by statute to any "voluntary" plan. During World War I the system was "voluntary" and in the years after that war it became evident that even though in 1917 and 1918 there had been a martial spirit prevailing, many city dwellers winked at the rather liberal "voluntary" food control program of those days.

Price control and rationing by statute during World War II was a success. The price line was held, no one really suffered, and few if any business men failed because of rationing. There were black markets, but any statistics on black markets are largely assumptions. When black marketing was unlawful no one dared to publish their guilt and after the law was repealed many doubtless bragged about successful violations which never took place.

Members of Congress, Democrats as well as Republicans, talk of the dangers of dictatorship in price control. That is not at all necessary. Price control is now a Truman program but it need not remain solely a Truman program—in fact it cannot—if it is to succeed.

If Congress is in favor of price control it is its duty to frame the best possible control law, and appropriate adequate funds to put the law in effect. Then Congress should remain in session to check on the administration of the law and make the amendments that will be needed. If such a program is tyranny then tyranny is inevitable under any representative form of government.

Contractors For Europe

The tragic European economic situation is appalling. So far the drain upon American resources has had no marked effect in stabilizing the European economy or overcoming the industrial disorganization, unemployment and want.

The genius of the American general contractor in a few months changed the face and body of American industry from a peace to war time production basis through employing great regiments of persons at new jobs and new skills.

Might not our forward relief program underwrite the American contractor in hiring by the thousands European laborers, transport them to appropriate foreign areas, there to be employed recovering consumable and durable goods for present and future consumption?

Wages paid for such enterprise would enter European economy at the primary level. From the employed effort of such labor, we would secure a return in produced resources, some for immediate consumption and some for the stockpile, but all contributing to the stabilization of the world economy.

Indian Education

When 22,000 Indians went to fight in World War II, as they had fought in many others, they often found they were sadly handicapped as soldiers because of their imperfect knowledge of English. Yet with this realization, when they were told our common country was endangered, they did not hesitate.

But now, because they have not had high school educations, they are not eligible to become students in our colleges, under the GI Bill of Rights. Each year on various "reservations" some 8000 red children grow up in the midst of this free country. And less than half of them ever see the inside of a public school.

Reservation schools will not answer. They only train Indians to be reservation Indians. We do not want our boys and girls brought up to be another generation of Government wards. Neither do we yearn to be educated for jobs in the self-perpetuating Indian Bureau.

The pleading, stifled cry of thousands of my red countrymen is to share with their white neighbors and brothers the rights of constructive citizenship, to which they are as fully entitled as any race upon these shores, and to be a real potential part of the community in which they live.

"The FBI Checkup"

Your editorial of November 18, "The FBI Checkup," is a reassurance to all Americans that any fears they may entertain about methods of investigation used by the FBI are groundless and that the completely objective J. Edgar Hoover by "his candid and explicit replies to questions put by Bert Andrews of the New York Herald Tribune about methods of conducting the investigations under the loyalty program should set at rest unfounded fears that the FBI has become a formidable secret police force prying on Government employes, invading their privacy without cause, etc." As usual, a very interesting editorial.

Reading from left to right, on the same page, I finally came to the very end and read with great interest the column by Marquis Childs, who coincidentally, has written on the same subject. But Mr. Childs pours no oil on troubled waters as you do with such great dexterity.

Whereas you quote Mr. Hoover as saying that FBI agents do not start an investigation on their own initiative, Mr. Childs quotes Clifford J. Durr, a member of the Federal Communications Commission, as stating publicly that "already the FBI is furnishing to the commission unsolicited reports on individuals connected with radio, and I can assure you that if you should be told the kind of things contained in many of these reports you would dismiss the information as baseless gossip."

Mr. Childs calls the reader's attention to the fact that the FBI initiated investigations and sought to influence FCC decisions by sending reports on certain individuals to the commission. Mr. Childs concludes his article, after warning his readers that the witch hunt developing in America can do infinitely more harm than the "splinter of communism which is so small in comparison to the great mass of American loyalty," by stating that it is "essential for freemen to stand up against those who would circumscribe and even destroy the right of free speech and free thought."

I find Mr. Childs more convincing than J. Edgar Hoover, and I regret to add, The Washington Post. I think you would be doing a great service to all the people by making a thorough investigation to see who should be believed. As a beginning, interview some of the several hundred people recently interviewed by FBI agents in connection with the dismissal of the 10 employes from the State Department.

D. V. R.

Washington.

Your editorial of November 18, "The FBI Checkup," says about J. Edgar Hoover's description of the methods of FBI: "He points out that the FBI agents do not start an investigation on their own initiative."

In the last column of the same page, Marquis Childs quotes Clifford J. Durr, Federal Communications Commissioner, as saying: "Already the FBI is furnishing to the commission unsolicited reports on individuals connected with radio," which he describes as "baseless gossip."

Your editorial says "inefficient, overzealous agents of the FBI may make mistakes that result in damage to the reputation of loyal and law-abiding citizens." It is very difficult, if not impossible, to sue the Federal Government for damages, an immunity very fortunate for some members of Congress.

Should not legislation be enacted to establish a parity of recourse against Government agents and private citizens guilty of reputation wrecking?

Security Policy

I would like to refer to the disheartening letter of November 17 by Zora Butler in which she presented a defense for the "security" activities conducted by the State Department. The tense international situation most certainly necessitates a program designed to protect vital sources of our national intelligence by a close scrutiny and investigation of personnel who have access to such information. But apparently Miss Butler has decided that the best means of guaranteeing security in Government is to rid the State Department of "children born of immigrants" on the supposition that they are a "bad security risk" because they inevitably "have sentiment . . . for the soil in which the roots of its ancestry are generations deep."

By Miss Butler's implication, I would gather that being born in the United States, growing up in American public schools and universities, fighting in the defense of one's country is insufficient to being an American.

It's pathetic that there are individuals that discard the fact that the major portion of our "Toms, Dicks and Harrys" are offspring of immigrants and have done much to make this country the seat of democracy in a topsy-turvy world. Is an American one who believes, furthers, and guards the idealism of the United States, regardless of his ancestry, or must the final judgment be based on a presentation of an affidavit verifying his ancestry to colonial America?

Czech Communists

By Godfrey Lias

Lesson In "Shove" Tactics

PRAGUE.—The duel between the Communist and non-Communist theories of democracy which has been going on spasmodically in Czechoslovakia ever since the country was liberated has now reached a decisive phase. The establishment of Cominform served as a signal for secondary issues to be dropped and battle has now been joined on the fundamental question of majority rule as understood in the West or one-party control of a coalition on the now familiar Slav-bloc lines.

At present, at any rate, there is no great likelihood of a Communist "putsch" such as took place in Hungary. In fact the Communist tactics can best be described as a never-ending shove. The Communists appear to believe, like Mr. Asquith, in the "inevitability of gradualness," though they apply the doctrine with a ruthlessness and assiduity which no liberal could ever hope, or wish, to emulate. They are past masters in the art of undermining their opponents' position by slow degrees instead of overwhelming them by a frontal attack.

JUST NOW, they are concentrating on the most vulnerable group in the National Front, namely, the Slovak Democratic Party. This party, which received two votes out of every three cast in Slovakia at the general election in May, 1946, has rashly taken to its bosom a certain number of supporters of the Slovak puppet state set up by Hitler in 1939. So, be it noted in passing, has the Slovak Communist Party, although it does not now admit that it has done so.

For some months a bitter fight has been going on round the question of a purge of the subversive elements of the Democrats. Toward the end of the summer, the National Ministry of the Interior, which is under a Communist head, was fortunate enough to unearth a plot against the state in Slovakia and almost every day since then allegations have been made that this or that Slovak Democrat leader was involved in it.

In mid-October the secretary of Jan Ursiny, the Slovak Democrat Vice Premier, was arrested and charged with complicity in the plot. This was a signal for an attack on Mr. Ursiny himself, though he was one of the leaders of the resistant movement during the war when he went to England to ask for help for the Slovak uprising. Ultimately, Mr. Ursiny had to resign, although not even his bitterest enemy could think that he had anything to do with the plot.

THE NEXT to be attacked were two secretaries of the Slovak Democratic Party who were accused of having negotiated with the plotters. As they were members of the National Assembly they could not be arrested without their parliamentary immunity being suspended. A bitter fight therefore followed, ending in a request by the two deputies themselves to be deprived of their immunity so that they could clear themselves before a court of justice. Their parliamentary colleagues accepted the request but, against fierce opposition by the Communists, added a rider that the two men must be in the custody of the court and not in that of the police. The National Assembly further decreed that their trial must take place within one month. Some of the alleged plotters had already been in custody well over two months without a trial.

The real significance of the rider, however, is that the Ministry of Justice, unlike the Interior, which controls the police, is not under a Communist Minister. Its head is a very respected member of the Czech Socialist Party who was one of President Benes' secretaries in England. The Slovak "Trustee" for Justice is also a non-Communist and there is even a non-Communist "Trustee" for the Interior in Slovakia who enjoys a certain degree of independence from Prague, though he does not control the police.

SOON AFTER the National Assembly's ruling on the two deputies, there were meetings of the Slovak Trade Union Movement, the Union of Partisans, the Union of Political Prisoners and the War Veterans Association, all four of which are Communist controlled and which simultaneously demanded that the Trustees for the Interior and for Justice should be replaced by "nonparty" men nominated by these four organizations. At the same time the four Communist members of the Slovak Board of Trustees and the only "nonparty" Trustee resigned and the Communist chairman thereupon declared the whole board to be dissolved. The following day the trade unions threatened a general strike if the demand for "nonparty" Trustees was not accepted when the new board was formed.

The demand to nominate the Trustee for Justice means, among other things, that the Communists are out to control the choice of the judges who will try those accused of plotting against the state, including the two deputies whose plight is beginning to bear a curious resemblance to that of certain people about whom there was a spot of bother in England in the year 1649. The English King Charles wanted to deal with the recalcitrant members of Parliament on the basis of the divine right of the Kings rather than according to the rights and privileges of the House of Commons. The Czech Communists in 1947 apparently want to insure that the court which tries the two deputies and the other accused will act as the instrument of the divine right of the people rather than on the basis of the established law, which they regard as socially biased and inadequate.

IT IS ALSO clear that if the Communists succeed in making the courts hand down political judgments in Slovakia they will have established a precedent for similar action in the Czech provinces, where the Western system of justice is much more deeply enshrined in the hearts of the people than it is in Slovakia. President Benet, himself a product of this system, has a prestige and authority which even the Communist Party would find it difficult to flout without most careful and sustained preparation.

If the Communists don't at first succeed they will certainly try and try again—with the odds well weighted in their favor for ultimate success. They have the moral and political support of the USSR at their elbows, whereas their opponents can neither count on support from the West nor solicit it lest they should be accused of being agents for foreign capitalism—to borrow the phrase used by the Communist newspaper Rude Pravo in one of its daily polemics against the Czech Socialist Party, which is cast for the role of next victim if and when the Slovak Democrats have been disposed of.

In the long run, however, the political face of Czechoslovakia will tend to reflect the relations between the great powers. If those relations improve, the country may be left to work out its own salvation. Meanwhile, the more those relations deteriorate the greater will be the influence exerted by, and the consequent attraction of, the USSR.

Bismarck once said that Bohemia is the navel of Europe and, on another occasion, that who controls Bohemia controls the Continent. The Soviet Union has suffered too much from the Germans not to have taken Bismarck's maxim to heart. If therefore there is to be any controlling of Europe's navel in the near future, it is the Soviet Union which is determined to exercise it. Only if the Russians feel quite certain that the U. S. A. and Great Britain are not going to resuscitate German military strength so that they can jointly fall upon the USSR will the rulers of Russia feel it is safe to relax their grip on the internal economy underneath the navel of Europe.

Divided Authority In Greece

RUMORS PERSIST that Dwight Griswold will be removed as head of the American Aid Mission to Greece. These rumors must have their origin with those who want to see Griswold removed or with those who hope for failure of the American program. Official sources deny any intention of forcing his resignation.

CHILDS

If Griswold should go, the hope of any real reconstruction program in Greece would also be gone. The little clique of the rich and the powerful in Athens would have won their battle to prevent the slightest moderation of their power and privilege. This privilege, incidentally, is greater than that enjoyed by any American of wealth since it includes the privilege of paying virtually no taxes.

Griswold has his deficiencies. He lacks boldness and imagination. But his great virtue is that he is a person who believes in trying to get the job done. As Governor of Nebraska he was known as a good administrator.

Moving slowly and surely, Griswold has tried to correct some of the more obvious inequities in the Greek economy. He succeeded, after considerable difficulty, in bringing about a broadening of the base of the government, which had been pathetically weak and incompetent. When I was in Athens two months ago, it was clear that members of the little clique who felt their power was threatened would do everything they could to get Griswold removed.

UNFORTUNATELY they have had an ally of sorts in the American Ambassador, Lincoln MacVeagh. MacVeagh's code as a gentleman and a scholar would never permit him to stoop to intriguing with these people, but he has been in Greece so long that he is almost more Greek than the Greeks. He is close to the royal family, and his friends are all among the ruling clique in Athens. He talks about the inevitability of intrigue and corruption in a Near East government and the folly of trying to think of Greek democracy in terms of western democracy. MacVeagh's slogan is: "Don't, for heaven's sake, disturb the status quo."

The Ambassador was one of President Roosevelt's friends out of the same Groton-Harvard background. Like the late President, he considered himself a liberal. His rich and ultra-conservative family regarded him as a dangerous radical. Now, apparently, MacVeagh is trying to atone for his former liberalism by embracing the traditional past in Greece.

A man with less patience than Griswold would have resented the kind of cold-shouldering that MacVeagh has seemed to try deliberately to show toward the head of the aid mission. An extraordinary example of this treatment has come to me from Athens.

A COUPLE OF MONTHS ago the United States Army sent Maj. Gen. Stephen J. Chamberlin to Greece to do a little independent policy making — as though two rival policy makers were not already enough.

Chamberlin arrived in Greece with MacVeagh. He stayed at MacVeagh's home. He flew to Turkey with MacVeagh. Altogether, in the two weeks he spent in Athens, he saw Griswold for exactly 40 minutes.

Thirty minutes of that total were when Griswold was asked to come to the embassy to enlighten Chamberlin and MacVeagh on the plan for revising the Greek national guard. The other 10 minutes came, on the day Chamberlin left, when he went to Griswold's office to say, "I just wanted to stop and pay a courtesy call before leaving."

Chamberlin never did call on Maj. Gen. W. G. Livesay, commander of the American mission's Army group and supposedly in charge of the military program. It would be hard, even if you deliberately tried, to give a more damaging picture of confused authority to the politically conscious Greeks who are watching this experiment.

The original mistake, of course, was in leaving MacVeagh as Ambassador at the same time that Griswold was sent in to head up a mission with a large amount of aid to distribute. MacVeagh should have been honorably retired. Granting his great merits as a scholar of Greek and Greek history, it seemed to me that our embassy in Athens was badly organized and poorly staffed.

Here is a significant case history for Congress, which is now faced with deciding how the European Recovery Program is to be administered. This kind of division must be avoided.

The reaction of most members of Congress who visited Europe last summer is to take authority away from the State Department and put it in some new Government corporation or agency. That does not solve the role of the various Ambassadors. A little study of what has happened in Greece should convince anyone that the best way not to administer a program in a foreign country is to put two Americans in power with authority vaguely divided between them.

Barkley Discovers He Broke Rib Oct. 28

Senator Barkley (D., Ky.) said yesterday he suffered a broken rib in an automobile accident near Dawson Springs, Ky., October 28, but didn't find out about it until last Wednesday.

The Senate minority leader was in his home State aiding the election campaign of Democratic candidates who recaptured the Kentucky Governorship and other major State offices in November voting.

After the accident, Barkley said his side "was sore as it could be, but I went ahead and finished the campaign."

At the Bethesda Naval Hospital X-rays showed the rib fracture and doctors taped him up.

British Say Biggest Problems Are Food, Housing and Fuel

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 21.—After centuries of abundant living, the problems looming largest in the minds of the English people today are three age-old human wants—food, shelter and fuel.

In a survey just completed, the British Institute of Public Opinion asked a cross-section of voters:

What do you think is the most urgent problem the government must solve in the next few months?

The American public, in answer to a similar question named prices, foreign policy and prevention of war as the most vital issues. The British answered this way:

Food	38%
Housing	14
Fuel	10
"Crisis"	8
Production	6
Export	4
Prices	3
Foreign Policy	3
Miscellaneous	14

After giving what they considered the most urgent problem, respondents were asked:

Which do you think could best tackle this problem, a Labor, a Conservative, or a Liberal government?

Replies to this question confirm recent polls in Britain which have traced a declining public support for the Labor government. Slightly more British voters feel the Conservative Party could best solve what the voters considers to be Britain's top problem than feel the Labor Party could solve it. The answers:

Labor	34%
Conservative	39
Liberal	9
No Opinion	18

A recent proposal of the Attlee government, to curb the power of the venerable House of Lords, falls considerably short of having British public opinion behind it. Actually just less than a third of the voters feel that this power should be diminished, according to another British Institute survey.

Do you think the power of the House of Lords should be increased, decreased, or left as it is?

The vote:

Increase power of Lords	5%
Decrease power of Lords	32
Leave "as is"	45
No opinion	18

Navy Prohibits Membership In 'Green Bowl' Society

By Marshall Andrews

Post Reporter

The Navy Department yesterday prohibited membership in the historic "Green Bowl" and other secret societies because of their "limited effect" on service morale.

A "memorandum to the press" said no action would be taken against officers who violated existing regulations by joining the Green Bowl during the 40 years of its existence at Annapolis. It was concluded, the memorandum said, that no officers should be penalized now for "the youthful indiscretions of their Naval Academy days." The Navy said a two-month investigation by Rear Admiral Frank J. Lowry and the Office of Naval Intelligence had disclosed that:

1. In its history, there had been 387 members of the Green Bowl out of 13,267 Annapolis graduates and that 156 are still on active duty.

2. The society was "social in nature" only and its members ceased to take any active part after graduation.

3. There was no evidence of discrimination against nonmembers or that "the association attempted in any way to obtain promotions or preferential duty assignments for any of its members."

4. There was no evidence that any Green Bowler had "benefited professionally or financially" by membership.

5. "The only harm done has been psychological, because its mere existence, no matter how innocuous its purpose, gave rise to rumor and speculation."

6. The Navy Department should have "taken direct action" to end the society before now.

Attention was first directed to the Green Bowl by Capt. J. G. Crommelin, jr., who testified before a House committee last July 1 that the Green Bowl was "a vicious officers clique." Crommelin, a naval aviator with an outstanding war record, formerly commanded the carrier Saipan.

A check by The Washington Post, based on a list purporting to be that of all Green Bowlers from 1909 through 1924, disclosed that Crommelin was outranked, by a single number, by only one Green Bowler in his own class of 1923.

At Norfolk, Va., where he is now stationed, Crommelin was quoted by the United Press yesterday as expressing satisfaction at the Navy's repetition of its ban on secret societies.

Among prominent naval officers who have been reported as having been Green Bowlers in their Academy days are Rear Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, recently appointed Chief of Naval Operations; Admiral Dewitt C. Ramsey, Vice Chief of Naval Operations; Vice Admiral William M. Fechteler, Deputy Chief of Naval Operations; Rear Admiral Leo M. Theobaud, Inspector General; Rear Admiral Paul F. Lee, Director of Naval Research; Rear Admiral Charles W. Styer, in charge of submarines, and Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, noted Polar explorer.

The Rev. W. Kenneth Lyons is a preacher who is even willing to shine shoes—if it means more money for his church building fund.

Several weeks ago members and friends of Anacostia Methodist Church, 14th and U sts. se., were given one-dollar bills and asked to invest them for the building fund.

Mr. Lyons, the young pastor, took his dollar and bought shoe-shining equipment. "Believe it or not," he told this reporter, "I shined shoes and did a very thriving business before the recent Men's Bible Class banquet. One shine netted $5."

At services tomorrow at 11 a. m. all persons who were given dollars to invest will place the principal and earnings upon the altar. Mr.

Hoyas, Colonials Play for D. C. Title

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

DAN TOPPING, president of the Yankees, has tossed one at Baseball Commissioner Chandler and American League President Will Harridge with his demand that they open a "complete investigation" of the St. Louis Browns' wholesale player sales.

POVICH

Topping is wasting his breath, though. The Browns' answer to any investigation can be easy, simple and blunt. They can tell Topping, Chandler and Harridge, "It's none of your business." There's nothing in the baseball code that permits interference with a club owner's player sales as long as they are made through regular channels and there is no charge that the Browns have done anything irregular.

The Yankees can complain to the high heavens, but Chandler and Harridge have no authority to take action against the Browns, however much they may deplore the scuttling of the St. Louis club by Owner Richard Muckerman. Anyway, the Yankees' protest sounds more like an anguished yelp than a noble attempt to check Muckerman's squandermania. The high baseball brass will file and forget Topping's bleat.

IT'S THE YANKEES who are hurt more than any club, except the Browns, by the dismantling of the St. Louis club. The Yankees got none of the players, but the Boston Red Sox, the team best equipped to threaten the Yankees' pennant next season, bolstered their pitching staff by buying the two best St. Louis hurlers, Jack Kramer and Ellis Kinder, and got a big infield lift in Shortstop Vernon Stephens. Topping's concern is understandable.

What Topping says about the good of the league has merit, however. The Browns, a push-over last year, now are an absurd outfit and the American League is, as Topping says, reduced to a seven-club circuit, in effect. He points out that the National League was burdened for years by the last-place Phillies who were content to feed off the road game receipts and their player sales for sustenance.

It isn't a happy condition for the American League, which recently got rid of one perennial weak sister when Connie Mack brought his Athletics up to fifth place and respectable standing after years in the cellar. The Browns, who won a pennant in 1944, now stack up as a more helpless club than the A's were in their lean days.

THE AFTERMATH of the Browns' transactions is not without its humor, however. After selling off one of the league's best shortstops, two of the league's best pitchers and their regular first baseman in an obvious gambit to appease the bankers, General Manager Bill DeWitt pops out of the wreckage with the statement: "We are doing a rebuilding job."

Never was the time more propitious for the Pacific Coast people to lure a big league franchise to Los Angeles. If the American League is deploring the Browns' situation, it has a ready remedy at hand. The approval of the transfer of the Browns' franchise to California is it. There with the frenzied support of Coast fans starved for big league ball, the Browns could be rehabilitated and the American League rebuilt into an eight-club league.

The Browns can't claim that they are going to reinvest what is estimated to be $400,000 profits from their sales into playing talent. Or if they do claim it, it's only an empty, face-saving gesture because in the baseball market as it is today they couldn't rebuy the players they sold for what they got for 'em.

AT THIS POINT, however, the American League is helpless to remedy the situation. The Browns' owners are within their rights if they sell off their stars. The league can't tell Mr. Muckerman how to run his ball club. If he wants to play his bat boy at shortstop, he has that privilege, provided the boy is signed to a regular American League contract.

It's not a pretty picture for the league, however. As an eighth-place club last season, the Browns were not too bad an eighth-place club. In fact, Clark Griffith declared that "it's the best eighth-place club I've ever seen in the big leagues." The league could have struggled along nicely with the Browns if they became no worse, but now they've gone and done it and the whole league is hurting.

The American League has been playing second fiddle to the National League in St. Louis since about 1922. Under the present conditions, it ought to be downright galling. By this time, the American League ought to be bending an ear to the call of that guh-reat State of California which awaits with an empty throne.

St. Louis Paper Says:

Browns' Recent Deals Zoom Them Over Financial Hurdle

St. Louis, Nov. 21 (AP).—The St. Louis Star-Times said today it learned in an interview with President Richard Muckerman of the St. Louis Browns that recent deals in which the club has traded some of its best players "have set the Browns swimming far over a high financial hurdle.

"One check alone—for $300,000—from President Tom Yawkey of the Boston Red Sox, in the deal involving Shortstop Vernon Stephens and Pitcher Jack Kramer for seven players, pulled the Browns out of the fire," the newspaper said in a copyrighted story by Sport Editor Sid Keener.

The Browns' front office has been criticized from several baseball quarters, including the New York Yankees and the Philadelphia Athletics, for their three cash player deals this week.

Topping, Match—Hit Deals

Owners of those two other American League clubs expressed fear the deals had further weakened the Browns, who finished last in the 1947 pennant race.

Daniel R. Topping, president of the Yankees, has asked for a "complete investigation" of the trades by Baseball Commissioner Chandler and League President William Harridge.

"I have heard reports saying that the Browns were in financial trouble," the Star-Times quoted Muckerman. "We may have been embarrassed, but not in trouble.

"We had other large cash offers for Stephens and Kramer. When Joe Cronin advised us the Red Sox would pay $300,000, then we closed the deal."

The newspaper said the Browns "stretched too high" for their 1947 rebuilding program at Sportsman's Park in St. Louis and the playing

Pair Farmed Out

St. Louis, Nov. 21 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns were quiet in the trading marts today, but disposed of two more 1946 squadmen on one-way tickets to a farm club.

Jake LaMotta Suspended Indefinitely By New York

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—New York's State Athletic Commission handed Middleweight Jake LaMotta an indefinite suspension today on a charge of concealing vital facts about his physical condition for a fight here a week ago in which he lasted only four rounds against Billy Fox of Philadelphia.

Commission Chairman Eddie Eagan, announcing the suspension at the end of a closed session during which LaMotta was questioned for more than three hours, also ordered the Twentieth Century Sporting Club to hold up the purses of both fighters until the district attorney's office completes its investigation.

The two inquiries were launched simultaneously after newspaper stories criticized LaMotta's performance leading to his fourth-round knockout by Fox at Madison Square Garden last Friday.

Ignored Doctor's Advice

Eagan said LaMotta had visited his personal physician, Dr. Nicholas Salerno, three times during his training for the fight and that Salerno had advised him not to box because of a hemotoma of the spleen. Salerno reported that LaMotta had ignored this advice, Eagan disclosed.

"Investigation shows that he suffered tenderness on the left side throughout training," Egan said.

"Dr. Vincent Nardiello, who is employed by the Twentieth Century Sporting Club, stated that if he had been advised about this hidden injury LaMotta would not have been approved by him for a major boxing match for at least two months after the injury.

"Such concealment for personal gain this commission holds to be against the best interests of boxing."

Jake's Lawyer Objects

The commissioner said his group would consider the facts again after the results of the district attorney's investigation are presented to the New York County grand jury.

"I want to enter an objection," declared Irving Tell, LaMotta's attorney, when the decision had been announced.

Eagan told Tell he could make any objections he wished, "but that's the way it is."

LaMotta displayed no emotion after hearing Eagan read the commission's verdict and said nothing.

Later, Tell told newsmen: "This decision is improper and an abuse of the colonel's power, induced by pressure of the press. There is not enough evidence of physical disability to even provide reason for an investigation."

Meanwhile, Al Silvani, LaMotta's manager of record, appeared at the district attorney's office to confer with Alfred J. Scotti and Andrew Seidler, assistants who are conducting the district atorney's inquiry. There was no announcement from that office.

Bell Fines Five, Bars Matheson

Philadelphia, Nov. 21 (AP).—Bert Bell, commissioner of the National Football League, today suspended Jack Matheson, Chicago Bears end, from participating in the Bears-Pittsburgh game Sunday and fined five other players who were disqualified during the Chicago-Los Angeles Rams contest November 16.

Bell said "Matheson's suspension resulted from his actions on the area of the playing field after the conclusion of the Ram-Bears game in Los Angeles.

"The commissioner said the actions were detrimental to the welfare of the National Football League.

Fines of $50 each were levied against three Bears' ends, Al Smith, Ed Sprinkle and Ed Cifers and two Los Angeles backs, Mel Bleeker and Dante Magnani. All were ejected from the game for "unsportsmanlike conduct."

Matheson became involved in a dressing room fracas with Los Angeles Coaches Bob Snyder and George Trafton. The trouble is said to have started when Matheson tried to take a football away from Buddy Leininger, Ram equipment boy, after the Bears had won 41-21 and the squads were leaving the field.

Matheson contended it was the game ball but Leininger insisted it was a practice ball. Observers said the Chicago player swung on Leininger.

Snyder and Trafton, themselves former members of the Bears, remonstrated with Matheson but the Bear end followed them into the Los Angeles' dressing room. There, witnesses reported, Snyder hit Matheson on the jaw as players from both teams milled at the door.

Grim Reaper Gets Navy's Goat, Billy X

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 21 (AP).—Navy's goat mascot, Billy X, died last night of pneumonia.

The goat was eating his greens yesterday as usual, but when his keeper, Leander Phelps, reported to feed him this morning he found him dead.

The Navy has already—as in the case of human royalty—a successor, a goat of Norwegian ancestry. Publicity Director Jerry Flynn described the new goat as "almost a Navy blue, with a suggestion of a white vest."

He has not yet been named, but will probably be Billy XI.

Jankowski Bars 'Spies,' Employs Counter 'Agents'

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

There were hints yesterday that the Central Vikings are planning to spring "something new" against McKinley Tech's Trainers when these traditional football rivals face off with the interhigh championship at stake the night of November 28, at Griffith Stadium.

Coincident with these reports, Central Coach Jan Jankowski yesterday ordered the stands at Central Stadium cleared of the usual daily smattering of spectators at workouts. Stadium gates were locked and custodians and volunteer alumni were stationed at school windows overlooking the stadium to foil Tech "spies."

Jankowski denied rumors that he was planning to use, at the suggestion of one of his players, a few plays off the "XYZ" formation that had helped a Western high school to an undefeated season. But he added, "We'll show them a lot of things they haven't seen before."

"A few Tech students were spotted at our practice sessions," he said, "and we didn't want them to learn anything. They haven't so far because our drills have been strictly routine. But from here on it, it'll be different."

Counterspies Employed

Jan admitted that he used to advantage a "counterspy" system with Leonard Stolar, 17-year-old Central graduate and former football team manager, "who knows the game forward and backward" having poked his nose in on a few Tech sessions.

"I've had a lot of help from other alumni too in building up for the Tech game," said Jan.

Harold (Bones) Becker, manager of the first two football championships at Central under the Jankowski regime in 1941 and '42, returned to use his "good luck influence."

Stan Valanos, passing star, and Mike Denikos, punting and running ace, of those two Central titular teams, have also turned out to help coach the backs. Denikos has a special interest in the championship game. His kid brother, Billy, is one of the running stars of the 1947 team and leads interhigh placekickers with nine straight extra point conversations.

Thanksgiving Day Off

Dick Scribner, Central's 1944 All-High end, was helping with the Viking linemen yesterday.

Jan announced that his team would hold three more practices, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and that his boys would get Thanksgiving Day off. "All work and no play might make our boys too dull," said the coach.

Tech had an off day yesterday and will remain idle until Monday. "No more heavy contact work," said Trainer Coach Ed Solomon. "My boys are sharp enough now.

"If they stay sharp, I'll let 'em have Thanksgiving off too, but otherwise we'll work right up until game time," he said.

Record Crowd Expected

Bowl-Hopeful North Carolina 7-Point Favorite Over Duke

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Durham, N. C., Nov. 21.—Interest in that ever-popular neighborhood football brawl between North Carolina and Duke reached fever pitch here tonight with thousands pouring into town.

Even tomorrow's dismal weather forecast didn't seem to dampen the high-spirited throng. Rain with a 40-degree temperature is predicted. Despite it, 56,500 are expected to jam Duke's huge horseshoe stadium.

If they do, it will be the largest crowd ever to see a game in the South except for games at New Orleans and Baltimore.

The bowl-hopeful Tar Heels, staging a fine comeback after two disappointing early-season setbacks, are seven-point favorites over the injury-riddled Blue Devils.

With a high-powered offense sparked by Charlie Justice, Walt Pupa, Jim Camp and Hosea Rogers, North Carolina figures to score its sixth straight triumph.

Then, if they get by Virginia, the Tar Heels will be in a position to talk business with Sugar and Orange Bowl officials.

Rain probably would send shaky Duke stock up a few points, since it might cause the Tar Heels running attack to bog down.

However, in Washington last week, North Carolina churned through the mud to notch three touchdowns in the final period against stubborn Maryland.

Despite inclement playing conditions, the Tar Heels displayed real power in the Terrapin game.

Duke will be handicapped severely with four regulars and a first-line sub out of action. They are Backs Buddy Mulligan and Paul Stephanz; Tackle Al DeRogatis and Centers Fletcher Wall and Carl Perkinson. Triple-threat Fred Folger and Tackle Lou Allen are expected to start, but neither is in top condition.

In any event, tomorrow's game is one in which spirit can't be discounted. And, psychologically, the underdog Blue Devils should have that edge.

Mainly, Blue Devil adherents were speaking in low tones of a series of ominous jinxes that are supposed to do more good against Carolina than 11 players.

The hex sounds like a very real one, at that. Since Duke opened its stadium in 1929, North Carolina has won only two games. A Snavely-coached club never has won in the big bowl.

If you listen closer, you hear that no North Carolina eleven ever has defeated a Wade-coached Duke team two years in a row. Memory of last year's

Vanderbilt Is Heavy Favorite To Down Invading Maryland

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 21.—Maryland and Vanderbilt, a couple of two-time losers, bump heads here tomorrow and you could get 3 to 1 tonight if you thought the Old Liners would sail through the host Commodores.

Beaten only by Kentucky and Louisiana States in eight outings Vandy was a 14-point favorite Down this way folks believe the surprising Commodores are headed for a Bowl game and a capacity crowd of 21,650 will jam Dudley Field tomorrow to see them try to augment their claim for a New Year's Day football date.

Vanderbilt's six victories include a 14-7 decision over Alabama and a 10-6 triumph over Charlie Connerly and his Ole Miss cohorts.

The Terrapins were welcomed to town by afternoon newspapers which proclaimed the greatness of the Commodores in large type. If this was designed to discombooberate or overawe the Old Liners, it failed miserably. Coach Jim Tatum's T-masters were quietly confident that they could avenge last Saturday's 19-0 loss to North Carolina with a win here and regain the small bit of prestige they lost when they fumbled away the game to Carolina.

There were a couple of changes in the Maryland line-up. Ray Krause has replaced the ailing Joe Drach at tackle and Johnny Larue, a 160-pound breakaway back, starts at left halfback, where Vern Seibert usually holds forth. Seibert has a bruised shoulder, but will see action.

Quarterback Vic Turyn will direct the Terp attack with Lu Gambino and Harry Bonk doing most of the strutting.

Maryland has scouted Vanderbilt five times this year and has more than a passing knowledge (and respect) for Vanderbilt's single-wing offense. The Terps knew that in John North, a rangy 200-pounder, the Commodores have one of the best ends in the country, a superb pass-

'Oh, My Aching Back,'—Tatum

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 21.—Big Jim Tatum, coach of the Maryland Terps, was moaning tonight and justifiably so. The 34-year-old former North Carolina tackle pulled his sacroiliac this afternoon while demonstrating a line play to several Maryland linemen. Tatum's injury took place on a bus which was transporting the Maryland team from the airport to the hotel here.

GW Win Would Offset Seven Previous Losses

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

It may have a hollow ring to it, but George Washington and Georgetown meet this afternoon at Griffith Stadium for what will have to stand this season as the District college championship game.

The kickoff is scheduled for 2 p. m., and about 15,000 followers of the Colonials and Hoyas are expected.

This will be the seventeenth meeting in a series which began in 1890. Georgetown has won 15 of 16 games with G. W.'s nearest approach to victory coming in 1907 in a 0-0 tie.

Hoyas Favored Again

Once again Georgetown will be a heavy favorite. The Hoyas have a far superior record, having defeated Fordham, Tulsa and NYU, while losing to Wake Forest by only 6-0, and to Villanova, 14-12.

In contrast, George Washington is nearing the end of a disastrous season. The Colonials have dropped seven straight, with injuries to key players hampering the squad since the opening game.

Three members of the George Washington team will be in uniform today for the first time in weeks. Center Don Druckenmiller, Tailback Bob Mazero and Quarterback Art Kennedy have been working out all week and may take part.

Their return may make quite a difference, as all three men were valuable players until injuries stopped them.

Hoyas at Full Strength

Georgetown will be at full strength. The Hoyas, operating behind a 200-pound line anchored by Bus Werder and Elmer Oberto, star quarts, will rely on the running of Tom Graham and the fine passing arm of Henry (Babe) Baranowski to move the ball goalward.

George Washington will counter with Al Dugoff in the principal ball-carrying role, with Frankie Cavallo, Howie Williams and Hank Bartelloni handling the throwing.

For Georgetown, Oberto, Werder, Tackle Lou Robustelli and Halfback Len Bonforte will be playing their last game. Only two Colonials are seniors, Tackle Carl Butkus and Quarterback Pete Labukas.

GW Expected to be "Up"

It will be the last G. W.-Georgetown game for these two, but the Colonials still have Kings Point left on their schedule.

Coach Skip Stahley will undoubtedly have his boys "up" for this one, as a victory over Georgetown would cancel many of the early heartbreaks suffered by the Colonials. Georgetown's veteran coach, Jack Hagerty, said early in the week that he expected trouble in whipping his players into the proper frame of mind for the game.

Hagerty remembers last year's grueling contest only too well, but many of his players seem to have short memories and regard the Colonial team as something of a pushover. They may be in for a big surprise.

The probable lineups:

Hockey Lions Hand Rockets 4 to 2 Setback

Striking twice for goals in the space of 12 seconds, the Washington Lions pinned a 4-2 defeat on the Philadelphia Rockets in an American League Hockey game before 1813 fans last night at Uline Arena.

The Lions broke a 2-2 third period deadlock with spectacular goals by Bob Walton and Ken Schultz providing the margin of victory.

Walton took a pass from Schultz and fired a sizzler into the net at 7:29. Then, immediately following the next face-off, Schultz scored on one of the most exciting plays of the season.

Frank Porteous Knots Count

After falling behind, 2-0, early in the first period, the Lions came back to knot the score at 2-2 on a pair of goals by Frank Porteous.

Porteous' first score made at 18:20 of the first session, got the Lions back in the game when it appeared that the Rockets were about to put the home forces to rout.

Standing near the Philadelphia cage, Porteous took the rebound after Walt Babey's long shot and poked the puck past Rocket Goalie Harvey Jessiman.

Philadelphia Scores First

Then, just before the second stanza ended, Dan Porteous fed Brother Frank a pass right in front of the Rocket net and the blond Washington wing drilled it in to tie the score.

Philadelphia scored first on Alex Motter's long screen shot at 6:38 and again at 7:52 of the opener when big Eddie Bush whacked in another screen shot which Lion Net Tender Gordie Bell never saw.

Amanecer Takes the Fenlon in First Win for District Owner

Jockey Kirk Barred for Rest of Meet

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bowie, Md., Nov. 21.—Joseph Tucci's Amanecer, one of a group of horses purchased recently by the Washington sportsman from King Ranch, today turned in his first victory for his new owner in the featured The Fenlon, a test of 1 1-16 miles.

The 4-year-old colt won by half a length from an unlucky Ensueno, the Argentine-bred horse owned by N. Marcalus of Brazil. Third in the field of seven was Joseph Dushock's Mahmoudess.

Amanecer, faultlessly ridden by Jockey N. Combest, returned a $13.20 mutuel, and was clocked in 1:48. A crowd of 7000 saw the son of Equestrian perform successfully over a fast track.

Ensueno Betting Choice

The crowd made Ensueno the favorite but the South American importation was all but eliminated when he ran out entering the backstretch and Apprentice Charlie Martens had to pull him up. However, Ensueno wasn't through and regained his stride to dispose of On the River and Mahmoudess, the front runners.

It appeared that the son of British Empire might win despite his trouble when he had a length lead some 30 yards from the wire.

The first disqualification of the meeting marked the fourth race, a test of 1 mile and 70 yards for 2-year-olds, and brought a suspension for the remainder of the meeting to Jockey Carson Kirk.

Brown Fox Disqualified

High Ground Stable's Brown Fox got home two lengths in front of Brookmeade Stable's Fertile Lands with Splash, the other half of the Brookmeade entry, third.

However, Brown Fox came over on Fertile Lands twice in the stretch after carrying Splash wide entering the straightaway.

Apprentice Charlie Martens, who rode Fertile Lands, made the objection and Brown Fox, ridden by Kirk, was disqualified and placed second to Fertile Lands with Splash remaining third.

The race was confined for the most part to those three horses, with Brown Fox setting the pace all the way.

Backers of the Brookmeade pair took down a $3.20 mutuel. Running time for the distance was 1:45 3-5.

Kirk Boots The Doge

Pentagon Stable's The Doge was a half-length winner of the fifth race, the day's secondary feature. Jockey Kirk had better luck this time. He brought the 5-year-old home a head of Brookmeade Stable's Music and Mrs. B. F. Lister's Eternity and the victory stuck.

The favorite players had a large interest in the result and backers of The Doge collected at the rate of $5 for each $2 investment. The son of Bulldog was clocked in 1:12 3-5 for the 6 furlongs.

The Doge went to the front early, but Music moved up on the outside and took a brief lead. It looked as if Music had the sprint sewed up in midstretch, but Kirk went to work on The Doge and the Pentagon Stable ace regained the lead and was drawing out at the end. Eternity closed willingly to be third.

Chance Nick Drops Dead at Bowie

Bowie Md., Nov. 21 (AP).—Cain Hoy Stable's Chance Nick, a 5-year-old, stumbled and fell dead during the running of the fifth race at Bowie today, but Apprentice Rider E. J. Knapp escaped with a shaking up.

Chance Nick broke through the gate prior to the start, and galloped off for a quarter of a mile, but was returned after a short delay. Chance Nick was badly outrun in the actual running of the race, and went down on the final bend.

H. G. Bedwell's Hammer-Lock, a former stakes winner, also died at the track today of shipping fever.

Secretary Sullivan Guest of Touchdowners

Secretary of Navy John L. Sullivan will head the list of Navy notables at the Touchdown Club's Army-Navy pre-game luncheon rally for Navy Monday at the Statler Hotel. Captain Tom Hamilton and his Navy coaching staff will also be on hand. The Quantico Marine eleven will be honored as the outstanding service squad in the country.

Roosevelt Upsets Western, 7-6, With Its First Score of Season

And Bowl Berth

USC-UCLA Battle for Coast Title

Los Angeles, Nov. 21 (AP).—This sprawling metropolis was gone beserk on the subject of tomorrow's football game between California and UCLA, with its Rose Bowl implications, and the quietest spots in town tonight, oddly enough, are the respective hide-away camps of the two teams.

People are not only willing, but begging, to pay outrageous prices for seats—$50 for a $10 pair between the 35-yard lines, 20 to $30 behind the goal posts.

So, unless the unanticipated day of liquid sunshine develops, as happened last year to cut the sell-out crowd of 98,000, more than 100,000 fans will pay upward of $500,000 for the privilege of watching this annual gridiron engagement.

From Southern Cal, which will sail on into the Rose Bowl if it gains a win or even a tie, came the customarily doleful tones of Coach Jeff Cravath:

"As far as I'm concerned, it's an even game. We'll have to be at our very best to win."

And from Coach Bert Labrucherie, whose Bruins by winning can send the Pacific Coast Conference title race into a deadlock and a vote by the 10 members to name the league's Rose Bowl representative, issued the comparatively optimistic statement:

"Mentally and physically we are ready. If we can get our share of the breaks, we can win—and that's what we are going out there to do."

USC has scored 180 points in winning six games and tying Rice, 7-7; UCLA has counted 172 points in winning five games and losing to Northwestern, Southern Methodist and, in the one that all but ruined its Rose Bowl chances, California. Troy's opponents have been held to a mere four touchdowns and 27 points, while the unpredictable Bruins, waxing hot and cold, have allowed 10 touchdowns and 74 points to the opposition.

If California takes Stanford, Oregon wins from Oregon State, and UCLA upsets USC, the title race will end tomorrow night in a four-way tie. The conference will vote for its Rose Bowl nominee late Monday, and California, while trounced by USC, 39-14, probably will have the inside track. There are other ifs, but they'll hold until the battles have been decided.

St. Louis Deals Solve Problem

field at San Antonio, Tex., where the Browns have a farm club.

"Our original blueprints for cost more than doubled our original budget," the newspaper quoted Muckerman. "After arranging for the purchase of Sportsman's Park real estate at $500,000, we agreed to improve the park.

"It was necessary because we were informed that the park did not meet required safety measures and sanitary regulations.

"The estimated cost of the job was $300,000, if I remember that figure correctly. It ran us $720,000."

"Sticking With Blowers"

Muckerman told him, Keener continued, that the estimate on the San Antonio construction was $300,000 but that the actual cost was $700,000.

Still quoting Muckerman, the story said:

"In overstretching ourselves for park improvements, we faced an obligation that was far over our budget.

"We did not stint in signing our players for '47. We finished last in the league with an expensive payroll. These new players may show more ambition. I sure hope so.

"I'm sticking with the Browns, and we all hope we'll come up with a winning ball club."

General Manager Bill DeWitt, who has engineered the deals for the Browns, asserted the players were not as high caliber as some believed.

"We parted with only two regulars—and one of them was helpful," he said. 'Stephens is a good player, but the fans complained of Walt Judnich, the other regular. As to the pitchers, Muncrief wasn't doing well at all. Kinder is old. Kramer is a good pitcher.

"My sincere belief is that we'll do better with young players than with veterans with past reputations.

"Look at Pittsburgh. They paid fancy sums for Greenberg and other players who did them no good."

Asked about the talk here and elsewhere that the Browns are contemplating getting out of the picture and are cashing in on salable material, DeWitt replied:

"That's utterly out of the picture as far as I am concerned. If Mr. Muckerman is contemplating disposing of the franchise and other properties owned or reserved by the club, I know nothing whatever about it."

Riders Grab Fumble to Set Up Tally

Bucky Simpson's midair recovery of a fumble resulted in Roosevelt High's first touchdown of the year and a 7-6 upset of Western before 1500 at Western Stadium yesterday.

Early in the last quarter Don Strain of Western intercepted a Roosevelt pass by Lou Sledge of Roosevelt on the Western 7.

Jim O'Leary of Western smashed through the left side of his line but the ball was jolted from his arms and Simpson caught it on the fly.

Two line bucks by Vince Pugliese and Sledge advanced the ball to the 1 and on the next play Pugliese scored. The placekick by Emmanuel Psaragis was good.

Western led most of the game. After it scored on the first play of the second quarter. Five first downs advanced it from its 42 to the Roosevelt 4 and Don Strain then threw a screen pass to Ed Sylvester in the end zone. The try for point by Strain was blocked by Bill Boyer.

4 Conference Titles on Block

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—Four major conference titles can be decided tomorrow as the college football teams stage their last full Saturday program of the season with Michigan, Notre Dame, Southern Methodist and Penn State still aiming at all-winning records.

Southern California can clinch the Pacific Coast Conference crown and the Western Rose Bowl bid by defeating or tying UCLA, the defending champion. However, a loss for Southern Cal would throw the race into a probable four-way tie.

Southern Methodist can be assured of no worse than a tie for the Southwest Conference championship if the Mustangs whip Baylor. SMU, winner of eight in a row, ends its season November 29 with Texas Christian. Duke could stow away the Southern Conference honors by disposing of rugged North Carolina.

Kansas and Oklahoma, tied for the Big Six lead, wind up their conference schedules against rugged opposition that will determine if either one is to hold the undisputed title. Kansas entertains Missouri in one of the top games of the day and Oklahoma visits Nebraska. Missouri also is in the running for the pennant.

That leaves only the Southeastern where Mississippi, Mississippi State and Georgia all are once beaten in conference play. Mississippi State meets Mississippi Southern, Georgia Tech plays lowly Furman and Mississippi takes the day off.

Bethesda Bowling Handicap Tomorrow

Virginia's Attack Is Pitted Against N. C. State Defense

By a Staff Correspondent

Charlottesville, Nov. 21.—A meeting of stonewall defense and battering-ram offense is scheduled for Scott Stadium tomorrow as North Carolina State's Wolfpack is guest of the University of Virginia in a 2 p. m. game.

State invades Cavalier territory fresh from a 20-0 upset of powerful Wake Forest and boasting the fifth best total defense in the Nation. In pass defense the Pack rates second in the country, having allowed an average of only 40 yards a game.

Virginia, on the other hand, has an attack that has accounted for almost 30 points a game with advances averaging 335 yards. The figure earns Virginia eleven ... among the country's offensive leaders.

Against State's record of three defeats this season the Cavaliers have suffered a single defeat, 19-7, by Pennsylvania. A post-season bowl game bid may hinge on the outcome for both teams.

Whether the field is wet or dry, an interesting punting duel is foreseen between Virginia's George Grimes and State's Leslie (Bootsie) Palmer. The kicking stars have averaged 41 and 44 yards, respectively, this season, earning the eleventh and second positions among the Nation's punters.

Tar Heels Favored Today

Tar Heel triumph, 22-7, still rankles Duke supporters.

After reaching midseason with only a Navy tie to mar its record, Duke has lost to Georgia Tech (7-0), Missouri (28-7) and been tied (0-0) by unheralded South Carolina.

The Tar Heels avenged their Sugar Bowl setback by beating Georgia, 14-7, in the opening game. Then Texas handed them a 34-0 lacing and Wake Forest found them still reeling the following week, winning by 19-7.

North Carolina then righted itself and started living up to preseason expectations. William and Mary, Florida, Tennessee, North Carolina State and Maryland fell before Justice & Co. and the Tar Heels confidently expect Duke to join the list of victims tomorrow.

In a similar spot last season they came back after losing three of their first five starts to take 17 consecutive victories.

The Caps will entrain for Washington immediately after tomorrow night's game to prepare themselves for a return meeting with the Bombers there next Wednesday night.

Anacostia Wins, Takes Third Place

Anacostia's Indians sewed up third place in the interhigh standings yesterday as they trounced the Coolidge Colts, 25-0, at Anacostia.

It took the Indians three plays from scrimmage to score early in the first period. Chow Echavez, Indians' halfback, went through center on a spinner for 66 yards after the Indians took the opening kickoff. His plunge for the conversion failed.

In the second quarter Anacostia scored again when Ralph Fraser threw a fourth-down pass to End Jim Faulkner for 6 yards. Jim Lassiter was stopped on his buck for the conversion.

Later on in the same period, Ralph Fraser made it 18-0 when he scooted around end for 10 yards.

Anacostia registered its final marker in the fourth period on the longest sustained drive. Jim Haller capped the 74-yard march when he bulled his way for 4 yards into the end zone. Jim Fraser converted.

Coolidge failed to cash in on its only scoring chance when it lost the ball on the Indian 9 early in the first quarter.

Dartmouth, Princeton in 37th Meeting

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 21 (AP).—Princeton's Big Three championship football team winds up its season tomorrow against a Dartmouth eleven which has not lost to the Tigers since 1940.

A crowd of 45,000 is expected in Palmer Stadium to see Princeton's favored team in the thirty-seventh renewal of the rivalry between the two Ivy League teams. Dartmouth won last year, 20-13.

Fifteen Princeton seniors, including six starting players, will make their final appearance tomorrow. Included among the last-year-men are Capt. Dick West, Center Frank Perantoni and Scatback Paul Cowie, the Ivy League's sprint champion who has been out with a pulled muscle.

Dartmouth's forward wall is expected to give Princeton's aggressive line plenty of trouble. Both teams developed late this season.

What Am I Saying! — By Frank Morgan

Bus Line Asks Fare Increase For D. C. Rides

W., M. & A. Would Raise Tokens to Two for Quarter

A 50 per cent increase in bus fares for rides within the District was asked yesterday by Washington, Marlboro & Annapolis Motor Lines, Inc.

In its petition to the Public Utilities Commission, the company requested that the price of tokens, which now sell three for 25 cents, be raised to two for 25 cents. Straight fares would be boosted from 10 to 15 cents.

PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan said the petition was being studied and that a hearing date would be announced soon.

Would Affect 6000

The proposed increase would affect approximately 6000 persons daily, WM&A President L. L. Altmann estimated.

WM & A operates buses from its downtown terminal at 11th St. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., to various points in Maryland. Portions of these lines within the District furnish "express" service downtown from a limited number of stops inside the city.

Principal lines used by persons in the District are those to Seat Pleasant, Oaklawn and Temple Hills, according to PUC.

The company also operates two local lines: between Barney Circle and the District line and from Barney Circle to Suitland, Md.

Deficit Operation Claimed

Altmann told PUC that the company "has been operating at a deficit since October, 1946." A 13 per cent wage increase for about 150 employes, granted by an arbitration board on October 16, "will increase our operating expenses by $50,000 annually," he said.

Business has declined 15 per cent since PUC ordered the company to begin sale of 8 1/3-cent tokens on September 30, 1946, he declared.

Altmann said the Interstate Commerce Commission now is considering WM&A's request for rate increases in Maryland. The proposal would reduce the size of the 15-cent fare zone, set up a new zone with 20-cent fares, hike fares in the present second zone from 20 to 25 cents and in the present third zone from 25 to 30 cents.

Contest Fails

Divorce Can't Change Will, Judge Rules

Divorce does not necessarily invalidate previous bequests made a woman by her husband in a will, Chief Judge Bolitha J. Laws of District Court ruled yesterday.

Laws' decision stemmed from a motion for probate of the will of Hale P. Daugherty, Washington businessman who died last June 17 leaving an estate of $65,000.

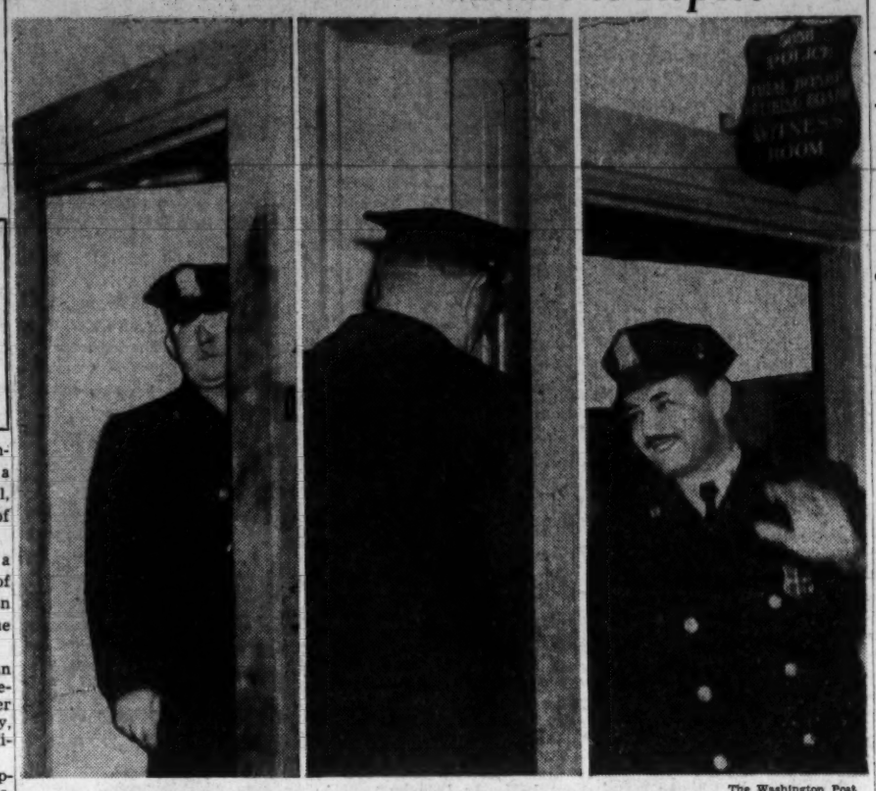
Motion for probate was begun by Attorney James F. Reilly in behalf of Mr. Daugherty's former wife, Mrs. Mary Louise Daugherty, who had been named sole beneficiary before the divorce.

Mrs. Daugherty's claim was opposed by eight cousins of her husband who alleged that the will naming "my wife Marie Louise Daugherty" was made out in 1931 prior to the divorce and hence should not apply.

Pointing out that no property settlement was made at the time of divorce, Laws held that the words "my wife" are "words of description and not words of condition."

In the absence of a statute making divorce a grounds for revoking a will, the court ruled it would not be justified in permitting a will to be revoked on these grounds.

2 Policemen Fined for Failure to Report



PVT. ROBERT REDDING
"Peek-a-boo"

PVT. HAROLD BEECHNER
Turns to corner

PVT. WILLIAM GORDON
A mild admonishment

The Washington Post

One policeman was fined $25 yesterday for failing to report to his station while on his beat, and another received a $15 fine for neglecting to report when going off duty.

Both officers, Pvt. Robert C. Redding, 45, of No. 5 Precinct and Pvt. William A. Gordon, 30, of No. 13, pleaded guilty before the Police Trial Board. They appeared without counsel.

Redding, whose $25 fine followed a $115 penalty imposed two weeks ago for failing to report and to patrol his beat, admitted yesterday he did not ring in at 4 a. m., on November 4. He gave no reason. He has been on the force 23 years.

Gordon said he failed to report at the end of his tour of duty at 8 a. m. on November 5 because he stepped into a basement to have a smoke, then fell asleep. Records showed he reported regularly until 7:03, but didn't return to the station until 8:33. He has been on the force one year.

The trial board, composed of Inspector Oscar J. Letterman, Capt. Benjamin C. Kuehling and Assistant Corporation Counsel Irving Bryan, continued until November 28 the hearings on Harold W. Beechner of the Fourth Precinct and Chester T. Harris of No. 13.

Harris is charged with neglect of duty and conduct unbecoming an officer. Beechner's charges are failure to communicate while on duty, failure to report off duty, and neglect of duty.

Transfer of Gallinger's Psychiatric Services to St. Elizabeths Proposed

Mason to Place Suggestion Before Board Tuesday, Law Change Needed

By James E. Ficken

Transfer of Gallinger Hospital's psychiatric services—"lock, stock and barrel"—to St. Elizabeths Hospital was proposed yesterday by Commissioner Guy Mason.

He said he would lay the proposal before the other two Commissioners at next Tuesday's board meeting. Such a transfer would require a change in the law-covering commitments to St. Elizabeths, he said.

Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeths, said he favored the plan "in principle" and could take care of the increased case load without a substantial boost in costs.

But he warned against cutting out all psychiatric services at Gallinger. Psychiatry should be included among the services at any general hospital, he said.

Senator Henry C. Dworshak (R., Idaho), chairman of the Senate District Appropriations Subcommittee. He said he had asked Kimball Sanborn, newly-appointed member of the sub-committee's professional staff to look into the problem. It is understood that the transfer idea originally was suggested to Mason by Sanborn.

Four members of the Board of Visitors to Municipal Hospitals were present when Mason made the proposal. Mrs. Ashmead Fuller, vice chairman of the board, expressed a fear that persons might dislike the "stigma" of going to a mental hospital for psychiatric treatment.

"How about a woman who has taken an overdose of sleeping tablets?" she asked.

Attorney Renah F. Camalier, chairman of the Board of Visitors, said he would ask the Commissioners to remove some of the stigma against Gallinger by changing its name to "District of Columbia General Hospital." He said the Federal Government also would be asked to change the name of St. Elizabeths.

Present law requires mental patients to be committed to Gallinger for observation. If their cases are acute, the lunacy commission must commit them to St. Elizabeths. This law would have to be amended to allow direct admission to St. Elizabeths, Mason said.

A dimmer view was taken by Dr. Alvin Sweeney, Gallinger superintendent, who argued that the District would be giving up to the Federal Government a function normally performed by the States.

Mason also said he would recommend to the other commissioners that the Board of Visitors to Municipal Hospitals be permitted to sit in on preliminary budget hearings, giving them privileges similar to those now afforded the Welfare and School Boards.

Rao of New York, assistant attorney general, Division of Customs; Albert MacC. Barnes of New York, president, Association of the Customs Bar; and Eugene R. Pickrell of the New York Customs Bar.

Judge Bland, a native of Greene County, Ind., was admitted to the Indiana bar in 1901. He was a member of the Indiana State Legislature from 1907 to 1910, and a member of Congress from 1917 to 1923.

An hour and a half later, at 1778 Willard pl. nw., police arrested Garland Smith, 43, and Delores Smith, 37, both of that address, Smith was charged with keeping and selling whisky without a license and the woman only with illegal possession of whisky. Each posted $500 bond.

In nearby Maryland, a midday raid on a Brentwood tavern resulted in the arrest of three men on bookmaking charges, bringing to 10 the number of persons arrested in 24 hours in the Prince Georges County drive against gambling operations.

Ring-Scooper Cannot Use Return Ticket

Second 'Commuter' Captured by Police Within a Week

And it would also seem that the commuting robbery artists err in buying round-trip tickets. They don't get a chance to use the return trip stub.

Police identified him as James S. Curvin, 39, a former convict of New York. Francis Knott of the First Precinct said he arrested Curvin at about 5:30 a. m., when he caught him scooping rings from the show window of Castelberg's Jewelry Store, 1004 F st. nw., into his hat.

Glass Shattered With Hammer

Curvin had used a hammer to shatter the glass. It was the sound of breaking glass which brought Knott hurrying around the corner and to the scene of the attempted robbery.

Police said Curvin told them he arrived here Thursday from New York and did three things. He selected the jewelry store he intended to rob, registered at a nearby hotel as "Samuel McClellan," and bought a return bus ticket to New York, anticipating a fast getaway.

Also From New York

A week ago yesterday, police arrested another alleged visiting burglar, Gerow P. Franklin, 28, also of New York, and charged him with housebreaking and larceny in the robbery of the Burk jewelry store, 614 13th st. nw.

Curvin, police said, once served a five-year prison term in Florida for auto theft and robbery.

Burglar Leaps Down Without Boots, Booty

Lyman returned home at 5:30 a. m. to find a puzzling pair of bedraggled brown oxfords parked on his porch. Lyman quickly got the idea and raced inside to find the prowler.

Miss Pollitzer Ruled Leader Of National Woman's Party

Miss Anita Pollitzer, national chairman of the National Woman's Party and other present incumbents are the legal officers of the party, Associate Justice James M. Proctor ruled in District Court yesterday.

The "Mayflower" group had elected Mrs. John L. Whitehurst of Baltimore as the chairman at a convention of the group held last January.

Proctor ruled that the meeting which resulted in the selection of the Whitehurst slate was illegal and in the nature of a "rump" parliament.

The decision meant that the group of officers headed by Miss Pollitzer remains in control of the party headquarters at the Alva Belmont Mansion, 144 B st., ne.

Besides Miss Pollitzer, other officers are: Clara S. Wolfe, Columbus, Ohio, 1st vice-president; Margaret C. Williams, Kent Conn., 2d vice president; Mrs. Randolph Keith Forrest, 1319 34th st. nw., 3d vice president; Mabel E. Griswold, Madison, Wisc., secretary; and Gladys Houston Greiner of Baltimore, treasurer.

Transfer Fought

1230 Sign Petition on ABC Permit

The strongly contested application of a downtown D. C. liquor dealer to transfer his store to the new Washington Highlands shopping center was taken under advisement yesterday by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Louis Brisker, of 507 11th st. nw., who seeks a liquor store license at 4011 S. Capitol st., has been opposed by Mead's Liquors, a block away at 3919 S. Capitol, and by the Washington Highlands Citizens Association.

At yesterday's ABC hearing, Brisker's attorney F. Joseph Donohue, introduced a petition with 1230 signatures in favor of the store as a counter to a petition introduced Thursday by Robert E. Lynch, attorney for Mead's Liquors, which bore 110 opposing signatures.

Donohue, asserting that area residents should be able to make purchases "under competitive conditions," said the owner of Mead's Liquors was "trying to protect his monopoly."

He also declared opposition to the proposed liquor store by the citizens' association was not representative of the viewpoints of all the area's residents.

Attorney Lynch cited testimony opposing the store by a member of the citizens' association, an Eleventh Precinct policeman and church leaders of the neighborhood in his summation.

Cost of Public Housing Faces Investigation

Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.) said yesterday he plans to get both sides of a charge that three public housing projects in Washington are falling into disrepair.

This charge and others were contained in a letter to Senator Aiken, as chairman of the Senate Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments. Joseph H. Deckman, chairman of the housing committee of the National Home and Property Owners Foundation, 1773 Massachusetts ave. nw., sent the letter.

The public projects are the Frederick Douglass dwellings, 2000 Alabama ave. se.; Fort Dupont Dwellings, and Stoddert Dwellings, both on Ridge rd. near Minnesota ave. se.

The private projects are the Greenway Apartments, Minnesota ave. and A st. se.; and Skyland Terrace, Good Hops and Naylor rds. se.

In general, the letter praised the private projects and criticized the public ones.

Aiken said he had asked on the Federal Public Housing Authority for a report on the letter.

Deckman listed these conclusions:

1. The construction cost of public housing is far more than that of private housing.

2. Public housing rents are higher than private if allowance is made for tax exemption, subsidy, and 60-year amortization.

His letter listed these monthly rents for two-bedroom apartments: Skyland, $64; Greenway, $60; Frederick Douglass, $40.50 plus $5 a month if the cost of coal paid for by the tenant is included: Fort Dupont, $44, and Stoddert, $36.50.

The three public housing projects are managed by the National Capital Housing Authority, whose executive officer John Ihlder, was out of town yesterday.

A spokesman for the agency, however, said that the Stoddert dwellings had been built as semi-permanent housing, under cost restrictions that made it impossible to build good housing.

2 Almas Temple Pinboys Had Easy Way of Looting

Two pinboys figured out a way to get in Almas Temple of the Shrine, 1315 K st. nw., last August 30 for some looting, it was disclosed yesterday in Municipal Court.

Oden Elliott, of 1420 D st. se., manager of the temple, testified when he arrived for work the morning of August 30 at 7:30 a. m. he found the pinboys, James Owens, 19, of 1758 S st. nw., and James Ward, 18, of 1645 3d st. nw., asleep in the lobby.

Because of a previous record, Owens was given $100 or 90 days for unlawful entry and larceny. He will be credited with 82 days already spent in jail. Judge Armond W. Scott referred Ward's case to a probation officer.

At that time Mrs. Jones told the court she intended to sell the accumlated old newspapers, bottles, rags and odd pieces of lumber to a junk man to help finance a new home.

Judge Scott yesterday accepted her personal bond after the health and fire inspectors assured him she has complied with his order to rid her house of the junk.

Area News in Brief

Surety Company Sued On House Bank Funds

The House bank already was short $83,879.22 when Kenneth Romney became House Sergeant-at-Arms in 1931, it was revealed in a suit filed yesterday in District Court.

The suit, brought by the Government against National Surety Co. of New York, which bonded Romney's predecessor, demands payment for the shortage.

According to the suit, the shortage occurred during the administration of Joseph G. Rodgers, who served as sergeant-at-arms from 1919 to 1931. Romney was Rodgers' cashier.

Rodgers died in Emergency Hospital July 12, 1937, of a heart attack.

George Morris Fay, United States attorney, who filed the complaint, said:

Romney, who is under a one to three year sentence for falsifying House bank records to conceal a $121,981 shortage, has asked the United States Court of Appeals to set aside his conviction.

The National Surety Co., which bonded Romney has reimbursed the Government for $38,102, the amount of shortage that developed during Romney's tenure as sergeant-at-arms. The Government present suit is to recover the full amount of the shortage.

O'DONAGHUE

He is Ross O'Donoghue, 34, of 5137 16th st., North, Arlington, Va. The oath was administered by Harry M. Hull, District Court clerk.

The new assistant attended Central High School, receiving a master of arts degree from Catholic University. He was graduated from Georgetown Law School in 1938 and went into private practice. In 1943 he was commissioned an ensign in the Navy and was discharged in 1946 as a lieutenant (jg). He is married and is the father of four children.

School Site Bought

A 7-acre elementary school site near Forest Glen rd. and Sligo Creek Parkway, Silver Spring, has been purchased to relieve "pressure" on two nearby schools, acting Montgomery County School Superintendent E. M. Douglass said yesterday.

Crowding exists at the two nearby schools, Clarkside and Woodmont, Douglass said. Negotiations are also under way to purchase new sites for elementary and junior high schools in the Wheaton and Old Bladensburg rd. areas, he disclosed.

Taxi Ordinance Hit

A section of the Montgomery County taxicab ordinance is unconstitutional, according to a written opinion filed yesterday by Judge Stedman Prescott of Montgomery Circuit Court.

The ruling does not invalidate the entire ordinance, Judge Prescott explained. The case involved William B. Wrenn and Edward J. Toth, former suburban cab drivers, who organized a new firm without a permit from the county commissioners.

The men were arrested on a criminal warrant, but Judge Prescott said a clause of the ordinance requiring organizers of new cab firms to obtain permits is "discriminatory" and hence unconstitutional.

Speed Try Set Today

Weather permitting, Woody Edmonson, Lynchburg, Va., speed flier, expects to take off at 9 a. m. today from National Airport in an attempt to set a new speed record to Havana.

Bad flying weather around Jacksonville, Fla., where he planned to make an eight-minute refueling stop, prevented his schedulde takeoff yesterday.

Present Washington-Havana speed record is 4 hours, 58 minutes, 52 seconds, set by Major Alexander P. DeSeversky 10 years ago.

No High School Strike

False reports yesterday of a student strike at Montgomery Blair High School, Silver Spring, stemmed from "youthful enthusiasm" over an invitation for the band, cheerleaders and drum majorettes to perform in Madison Square Garden on December 1, officials said.

The unofficial rumor began circulating about noon when several students started campaigning vigorously for parental and school approval of the New York trip in the company of the Washington Capitals, a local professional basketball team.

Principal Daryl W. Shaw yesterday sent to all interested parents a questionnaire on which they were asked to state their approval or disapproval of the trip. The excursion will cost approximately $2000 and parents will have to finance most of the expense.

Pupils Give Rededication Air Program

Students from two high schools and a grade school told what freedom and democracy meant to them in a Youth Day radio program yesterday over WWDC.

The radio show was prepared by teachers and students of Calvin Coolidge and Woodrow Wilson high schools and the Giddings Lincoln grade school. It was part of Washington's Rededication Week in preparation for the arrival of the Freedom Train at Union Station on Thanksgiving Day. Special programs also were held at several playgrounds.

A chorus from the Wilson school set the theme of the radio program by singing "New World," which was followed by a recital of the Freedom Pledge. Hart Dake and Stan Rubenstein of Coolidge discussed what freedom meant to them, and stressed the applicability of the ideas of the Freedom Train documents to the present day.

Malcolm Clark and Joan Sanborn, students at Wilson, spoke of what they could do as active members of a democracy.

Sixth grade students from the Giddings School held a panel discussion on the principles that must be followed in order to be worthy of the sacrifices which produced our heritage. They agreed that learning to live with each other was the most important task in making democracy a success. The panel was led by their teacher, Mrs. Louise Mack.

In conclusion, Roger Price of Woodrow Wilson read an excerpt from Stephen Vincent Benet's poem, "America."

Maryland Guard Modeled on UMT Unit Is Formed

The Army unit is for boys from 17 to 19 years of age. Its Maryland Guard counterpart, the first unit of its type in the Nation, was planned by Col. William Baxter, commanding the 175th Infantry Regiment of Baltimore.

He added that a special group of officers and noncommissioned officers will be sent to Fort Knox to receive instruction in universal military training procedures.

Newspaper Women Entertain

Nosegays, Not Protocol, Rule At Party Feting First Lady

By Genevieve Reynolds

Protocol didn't exist. The First Lady, who was guest of honor, sat at a table in the audience. Cabinet wives found no place cards to guide them. And there were no long-winded speeches. Occasion was the American Newspaper Women Club's informal luncheon yesterday in the Mayflower Hotel for Mrs. Truman and the organization's associate members.

To avoid the argument of who sits above or below the salt, the 170 guests and members drew nosegays at the entrance of the ballroom and were told to find their place by matching the sprigs of floral arrangements on the tables. So none knew whether the American beauty rose or the yellow chrysanthemum would land them a back or ringside table.

Associate members were introduced via jingles with a "guess who I am describing." Betty Beale, Babs Lincoln and Grace McGreer, first vice president of the club, performed the Dr. I. Q. "I have a lady" style introductions.

Three Cabinet wives were among the associate members honored. Mrs. Tom C. Clark, Mrs. Robert E. Hannegan and Mrs. Clinton Anderson. Wives of former Cabinet members included Mrs. James F. Byrnes, Mrs. Cordell Hull and Mrs. William N. Doak.

Other associate members feted were Mrs. George Mesta, who incidentally landed at the right of Mrs. Truman in the day's drawings; Mrs. Tom Connally, Mrs. Robert E. Freer, Mrs. Smith Hempstone, Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, Mrs. Luther Sheldon, jr., Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, Mrs. Julian E. Gillespie, Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mrs. Douglas Hatch, Mrs. Perry Heath, Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Mrs. Emil Hurja.

Guests of individual club members included Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, wife of the Supreme Court Justice; Mrs. Edward F. Bartelt, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; Mrs. John R. Steelman, wife of the Assistant to the President; Mrs. Claude Pepper and Mrs. Spessard L. Holland, whose husbands are Senators from Florida.

Glimpsed at the informal funfest were Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, accompanied by her house guest, Lady Wrench; Mrs. Katharine Kennedy Brown of Ohio, a vice chairman of the Republican National Committee, Mme. Tan, wife of the Chinese Minister; Mrs. Wade Hampton Ellis, Mrs. Martin Vogel, Mrs. Ollie James, Mrs. Duncan McKim, Mrs. William Henry Watson, Mrs. James M. Helm, social secretary of the White House and Miss Reathel Odum, secretary to Mrs. Truman.

Century Club Gives Party

About three hundred members of the Twentieth Century Club donned their gayest plumed hats and "new look" frocks yesterday for the organization's "get acquainted party" held in the Washington Club. Purpose of the gala fete was to honor new members and officers.

Mrs. Geoffrey Creyke, club president, wore a corsage of pink orchids which were sent to her by a friend in Hawaii, especially for the occasion. Receiving with Mrs. Creyke were other Twentieth Century Club officers, and board members among whom were Mrs. Joseph Paul, Mrs. Thomas Magruder, Mrs. Robert Townsend, Mrs. Benjamin Brooks, and Mrs. Verner Boggs.

Congressional Club Entertains at Tea

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

Can you give us information on the habits and means of extermination of small brown ants that appear in our apartment almost out of nowhere. We are beginning to feel as though we are fighting a losing battle as we throw away more and more food, swarming with ants. They appear in the kitchen and bathroom, on the walls and sinks. Killing them and spraying with DDT bomb brought only temporary relief. Do you suppose they return so frequently because they are in other apartments, too? If we had a professional exterminator, would his work have a lasting effect if other apartment dwellers did not use similar means?

A. C. B.

Some apartment house managements have made arrangements for an exterminator to call regularly in order to keep the building free from serious infestations of insects. Is there any way you can persuade your management to adopt such a policy? If the building is full of them, it will be very difficult for you to keep them from coming in your apartment, no matter how often you kill off new infestations. Did you spray well with the DDT around doorways, cracks, windows and other places of entry? This will help to some extent in checking their advance. Also, if you see the ants apparently carrying food back to their nests through cracks in the wall, squirt kerosene into cracks and close them up with cotton wool dipped in kerosene. Some of the syrup preparations sold in drug stores—such as "Terro" and "Antro"—are also quite effective. You put a spot of the syrup on a piece of cardboard. The ants take some of this back to their nests and in this way the queen may be killed, thus destroying some of the nests in your immediate vicinity.

The wallpaper under the windows in my room is very discolored. I don't want to go to the expense of doing over the whole room. Could you suggest something I could use? C. D.

If the paper has been stained by water coming through the window and running down over the sill, the following may help to clear it up: Make a poultice of Fuller's earth and carbon tetrachloride (both purchasable in drug stores) Spread it over the stained area and let it remain overnight. (Test first to be sure carbon tetrachloride doesn't make colors in paper fade.) Scrape off loose powder. If wallpaper was guaranteed washable, take off any remaining powder with a cloth or sponge dampened with cold water. It may be necessary to repeat the poultice treatment to get off all the stain. If the colors in the wallpaper beneath the window have faded, it won't be possible to restore it to its former appearance. If you happen to have short pieces of the wallpaper left or know where to buy more, you can always repaper this small area.

A fine answer to the Thanksgiving meat problem for a family of two is the roast turkey "quarter." Available in several local stores, the quarters can be roasted just as a whole turkey is. They'll fit into the smallest oven, stuffing can be cooked beneath or beside them, and there'll be plenty of gravy in the pan to go on the mashed potatoes

Please print a recipe for crab cakes similar to those sold in local seafood restaurants, if possible using canned crab meat. F. G. H.

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons minced onion
½ cup soft bread crumbs
2 beaten eggs
½ cup cream
2 cups flaked crabmeat (canned or fresh)
½ teaspoon dry mustard or 1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon paprika.

Melt butter in saucepan, then add onions and bread crumbs and simmer for two minutes. Add rest of ingredients and chill for two hours. Shape into cakes. Dust them lightly with flour or bread crumbs. Then either fry cakes in deep fat, or brown them in butter on both sides; lower the heat and cook the cakes slowly for about 6 minutes longer.

PETUNIA!

It's a general feeling:

There isn't an orange
That's worth the peeling.

—Then peel it, Petunia, before you put it in the lunchbox, and wrap it in waxed paper. Orange-peeling is no trouble at home, with a handy faucet, but it's a messy job at an office or work bench.

Apt to Land Anywhere

Did you ever unmold an attractive gelatin salad or dessert only to find it had landed in the northeast section of the plate instead of the exact center where you wanted it. Try pouring a little cold water over the dish and then shake off as much as possible. Then unmold the salad and if it fails to make the center it is an easy matter to slide it right over to where it belongs, as it will slip readily on a wet plate.

Peoples Drug Declares 10% Stock Melon

By S. Oliver Goodman

Beavers

President Thomas N. Beavers announced yesterday that directors had declared a 10 per cent stock dividend, in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement of 40 cents a share on capital stock. The regular is payable December 27, while the stock dividend is payable December 31. Both apply to stock of record December 8.

With 390,000 shares outstanding, the stock dividend means that 39,000 shares will be distributed. At the recent market price of $55 a share, this means the stock dividend is worth $2,145,000. This plus the $156,000 in cash makes an aggregate melon of $2,301,000.

Shares figuring in the stock dividend will be taken from the 100,948 shares held in Peoples Drug treasury and will not be a new issue, it is understood.

Recently, the store chain reported net income of $1,364,930 for the first nine months this year, equal to $3.50 a common share, compared with $1,357,477 or $3.48 a share in the like 1946 period. Net sales this year were $33,235,008, against $31,374,507 in the first nine months last year. Earned surplus as of September 30 was $6,850,332, against $5,499,270 on the same date last year.

EXPORT HEAD: Robert A. Shaffer, president of the Shaffer International Corp. of Washington, yesterday was appointed local representative for foreign and domestic government sales by Graham-Paige Motors Corp. In announcing the appointment Joseph W. Frazer, Graham-Paige head, said he expected a 30 per cent increase in foreign sales "since food and farm equipment are scheduled to have top priorities under the Marshall Plan." He added that Shaffer will have complete facilities here for demonstration and service for purchasing commissions of foreign governments as well as United States procurement agencies.

PEPCO LISTED: Potomac Electric Power Co.'s new common stock was admitted to trading yesterday on both the Washington and New York Stock Exchanges. Trading was conducted on a "when distributed" and on a regular basis. In New York, Pepco closed at 15¼ on a regular basis and at 14¾ on a "when distributed" basis. In Washington Pepco closed at 15 on regular basis, with no sales on a "when distributed" basis. Some brokers here were puzzled at the price discrepancy, while one explained that the variance might be due to the belief that the stock may decline when North American Co. distributes 2,073,113 shares on December 22 to its stockholders. At present there are only 888,137 shares of Pepco common in the hands of the public.

ODD LOTS: A. Graham Shields has been appointed assistant secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association and director of its oil heating division . . . SEC approved an application from Appalachian Electric Power Co. of Roanoke, Va., to issue and sell 28 million dollars of 30-year first mortgage bonds and 75,000 shares of $100 par cumulative preferred stock. Bonds will be sold competitively and stock will be offered initially to preferred stockholders on a pro rata basis . . . Production expected to start in January on new three-wheeled auto to be known as Davis with price slated under $1000 f. o. b. Los Angeles . . . A special Federal Court yesterday set aside an Interstate Commerce Commission order which would have increased freight car rentals from $1.50 to $2 a day.

STORE SALES: Washington department store sales in week ended November 15 showed a 2 per cent increase over the same 1946 period, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday. For four weeks ended same date, local sales were up 6 per cent. Regionally, store dollar volume gained 2 per cent for week and for four-week period was up 4 per cent.

'Youth Day' Is Observed At Annapolis

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 21 (AP).—"Youth day," was observed at the State House today with the joint signing of a proclamation by Governor Lane and boy governor William Walker Rowan III, who headed the 1947 boy legislature.

Governor Lane's proclamation declared that with the expected arrival of the freedom train at Baltimore November 25, "a fitting opportunity is presented for rededication of the youth of this State to American ideals.

"Representative young men of this State are observing at first hand the functions of our government at the State and municipal level.

"Through such contact with the democratic processes under which we live, they are better fitted for citizenship."

The boy legislature group, headed by Rowan, arrived in Annapolis where they met the "mayor" Robert A. Clemens and his aide, Michael J. Mrlik.

Accompanying the lads were State Senator Hubert P. Barton D., Baltimore, Second) chairman of the "Governor's" advisory committee and Delegate Benjamin A. Mrozinksi (D., Baltimore, First).

Youths in the group included: Charles P. Wise of Baltimore speaker of the House of Delegates; Jack Butler, Hagerstown, clerk of the House; Roy M. Snyder, also of Hagerstown, president of the Senate; Charles H. Epps of Baltimore, clerk of the Senate; E. Bertram Blackwell of Baltimore, chaplain of the House, and Edward D. Burger of Frederickick, chaplain of the Senate.

The "youth in government" group which is sponsored by the YMCA. Each year the Legislature holds a preliminary session at College Park, which is followed by a regular session at the State House during which the regular legislative processes are followed.

Md. Is Sued To Keep Fees In Baltimore

Baltimore, Nov. 21 (AP).—Suit was filed in the Circuit Court of Baltimore today to keep license fees collected by the city since June 30 from going into the State treasury.

Hyman A. Pressman, Baltimore attorney, instituted the action in the capacity of a citizen of Baltimore. He asked the court to interpret a legislative enactment that put the Sherbow tax plan into effect and to reverse a ruling by Attorney General Hall Hammond.

City finance authorities had assumed they were entitled to the fee collections under the Sherbow plan. Similarly, local subdivisions throughout Maryland had supposed they would receive such revenues.

However, Hammond ruled Wednesday that the State and not subdivisions, was entitled to the license payments under the Sherbow ta : plan.

Pressman's suit questions the validity of the attorney general's ruling and seeks a declaratory judgment to block handing over to the State of such fees already paid to the city.

The suit named as defendants State Comptroller James J. Lacy and Frank C. Robey, chief clerk of the Baltimore Court of Common Pleas, where the licenses in question are issued for Baltimore.

Martinsburg, Va., Has to Switch Its Water Hole

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 21.—Martinsburg was getting water from a natural reservoir in a worked-out limestone quarry—the usual source of the city's supply—today after completion of a project involving the shifting of the reservoir pump.

Removal of the pump to a deeper spot in the reservoir became necessary after the water level sank so low the pump began churning up mud. While work was in progress, the city obtained its water supply on an emergency basis from Tuscarora Crek.

That expedient, however, resulted in curtailed operations at the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad yards here, because the carrier also gets its supply from the creek. The B. & O. furnished welders and other workmen to help in the task of removing the pump.

City officials emphasized, however, that the improved water situation still would not permit lifting of a ban against the use of hoses in the city.

A MILLION CHEERING BRITONS GATHER OUTSIDE BUCKINGHAM PALACE THURSDAY FOR A GLIMPSE OF ENGLAND'S NEWLYWED COUPLE

Elizabeth and Philip Enjoy Ride in Jeep Through Country

Romsey, England, Nov. 21 (AP).—Britain's royal newlyweds, Princess Elizabeth and her dashing Prince Philip, took a joy ride in a jeep today and then spent many hours alone in the seclusion of Broadlands, their honeymoon mansion.

They were occupied, according to word received in this placid market town, in the pleasant task of reading the thousands of congratulatory messages from around the world.

Unnoticed by Romsey townspeople, Philip drove the bouncing jeep out of the gate at Broadlands while England's future Queen sat beside him holding her Welsh corgi dog, Susan.

For about an hour they toured the 6000-acre Broadlands estate, the property of Earl Mountbatten, Philip's uncle, and the neighboring Hampshire Downs. Then they returned to the warmth and quiet of the mansion. It was a damp, misty day calling for the cheerful glow of fireplaces.

Arthur Hook, the earl's grocer, called at Broadlands during the afternoon to collect the week's grocery order. He came back with two food ration books.

Of the royal groceries, Hook said: "They will have only the same as other people."

The same as everyone else includes an ounce of bacon per week and sometimes an egg. Elizabeth and Philip had bacon and eggs for breakfast this morning—a treat in lightly rationed Britain.

Russian Wedding Snub Resented by British

London, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—Russian prestige, dwindling since the end of the war, hit a new low mark in Britain today when it was realized that the Soviet government virtually ignored the wedding of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh.

Russian Ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin did attend the ceremony at Westminster Abbey. But though he had contributed for the joint wedding present of the diplomatic corps, neither he nor his government sent a present of their own.

The Moscow radio, which broadcasts ceaselessly on foreign events, did not even mention the marriage. Nor, a Moscow dispatch said, did today's Moscow newspapers. The London Daily Worker, organ of the British Communists, devoted three paragraphs on its first page to the wedding. On page 2, the newspaper gave four columns to the simple wedding of a London couple in the Wanstead District.

It was noticed that when Zarubin arrived at Westminster Abbey for the wedding yesterday the cheers which rang for others stopped abruptly as his car, with its hammer-and-sickle flag on the radiator, drew up. He entered the Abbey amid a cold silence.

Today what was called a slight against a beloved princess by Russia inspired a good deal of resentment among the men in the street who had not bothered much about the difficulties their leaders have had with Russian leaders.

Convicted Slayer Wins Rehearing

Richmond, Va., Nov. 21 (AP).—James Thomas, who was sentenced by the Circuit Court of Goochland County to serve a life term for the murder of his aunt, Mattie Hall, on March 4, 1946, won a rehearing today in the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals.

The case was appealed to the Supreme Court last spring and Justice George L. Browning began writing an opinion reversing the trial court. He said the question of the 22-year-old defendant's guilt was "enshrouded in doubt."

Justice Browning died in August. In an opinion by the court last month, the majority affirmed the lower court, but Justice C. Vernon Spratley made public the opinion which Browning had written.

Arlington Man Gets 8-Year Term

William Leroy Moore, 26, of 2424 S. Glebe rd., Arlington, was sentenced to serve an 8-year prison term for armed robbery yesterday in Arlington Circuit Court.

According to county police, Moore entered two taxicabs within three hours on the night of August 1, forced their drivers out, and drove off with the cabs. He also took more than $100 from the two drivers, the warrant said.

Arlington police chased Moore in the second stolen cab at high speed along Lee blvd. At Court House rd., Moore's car overturned three timse and when he emerged from the wreck, police shot him through the shoulder as he tried to escape.

U. S. Finishes Testimony in Gun Theft Case

Augusta, Ga., Nov. 21 (AP).—The Government completed today its testimony against four men charged in Federal Court with stealing Navy machine guns and Judge Frank M. Scarlett ruled the evidence was sufficient to submit the fate of three of the defendants to the jury.

A motion was made to free J. Meredith Russell, 24, former United States flier, on grounds no testimony was presented that he had any part in taking the Navy weapons from Bush Field in April.

The young Baltimorean's attorneys argued that all he did was truck the guns from the Baltimore Airport to the "show place" stone mansion of Karl J. Eisenhardt, near Ellicott City, Md. They contended he was no more guilty than a transport company performing the same function would be.

The court held that Russell might be guilty of "aiding and abetting" and that it would have to let the jury determine the facts.

A few minutes later Judge Scarlett also refused acquittal for Eisenhardt, a business executive and former oil transportation adviser to Government agencies, and Edward Browder, jr., 30, Amarillo, Tex., former military flier. The fourth defendant is Manuel L. Fuego, Miami, Fla., 37-year-old native of Cuba.

Three new Government witnesses were presented to support grand jury indictments that the men took the machine guns from a warehouse at Bush Field, flew them to Baltimore and cached them in a basement furnace room at Eisenhardt's home.

The first witness was Bertram L. Boone, Maryland Secretary of State, who said Eisenhardt had an "excellent reputation both as a businessman and a citizen." Boone also said that as far as he knew young Russell also had a good reputation.

FBI Agent Edward L. DuBois, jr., testified that a B-25 plane on which the Government claims the machine guns were flown from Augusta to Baltimore apparently was purchased for Eisenhardt in the name of a nonexistent company. The Bush Field sales paper listed the Aero Photo Co. of Miami. DuBois said he was unable to find any trace of the firm at the address given or elsewhere in Miami.

Stassen Given Big Ovation By Editors

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Harold E. Stassen, after an all-night air trip from Florida, won an ovation from 300 influential country editors here in Chicago today.

He spoke before the National Editorial Association and afterward spent a half hour answering questions from the floor. When he had finished, the Michigan room of the Edgewater Beach Hotel reverberated with applause.

One editor asked the Minnesota presidential aspirant if he thought the Federal Government could operate with fewer employes.

"Yes," said Stassen. "If the Federal establishment were properly streamlined and efficiently operated, it could get along with 20 per cent fewer employes."

He said that President Truman's proposal for price and wage controls was a "bad mistake," which would lead to lower production and a widespread black market.

He praised the Taft-Hartley law, but suggested that labor papers be allowed to say whatever they pleased and that only those accused of being Communists be required to sign the anti-Communist affidavit.

The candidate for the Republican presidential nomination told the editors he was concerned because of two recent developments.

The first, he said, was an attempt to restrict the flow of Government news in connection with the so-called loyalty purge.

The second, he continued, was suggestions arising from hearings of the House Un-American Affairs Committee, which, he said, implied there should be some kind of Government supervision of motion pictures.

"It is my view," asserted Stassen, "that except for the existing restriction as to libel, public morals, fraud and treason, there must continue to be complete freedom of all media of expression in America. We must not have governmental censorship of the screen, or of books, or of the press, or of the radio, or of the theater.

"The day we seek to block the expression of dissent—the voice of opposition—in America, that day we lose something fundamental to the future well-being and strength of the American people."

Stassen added, however, that there existed also "an obligation to be frank and direct as to affiliations and philosophy."

"The people are entitled to know, when they ask, the political affiliations of anyone who writes or speaks or seeks public office," he said, "or otherwise endeavors to exercise leadership in public opinion of America.

Ohio Union Would Test Taft's Strength

Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Toledo Central Labor Union tonight invited former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota to enter the Ohio Republican primaries in May to "test the strength" of Ohio's Senator Robert A. Taft as a presidential candidate.

The resolution approved by the AFL central body said the sole reason for the invitation was to "provide an opportunity for labor and independent voters to express at the May primaries their disapproval of Senator Taft's antilabor legislation and reactionary policies on international affairs."

World Food Survey Urged By Anderson

Agriculture Secretary Anderson yesterday proposed a meeting of the world's agriculture ministers to consider cooperative plans to provide food for food-deficit countries.

Anderson

Chiefly, he said, his plan would deal with countries outside the deficit areas, which could increase their production. Representatives from Latin America, the Middle and Near East, Africa and the Far East, would be invited.

Ministers from Europe and other deficit areas would also be invited to discover how they could not only increase their farm production, but also the food production of their fisheries and other industries.

"The security of the world," Anderson said, 'is too important to entrust this burden and responsibility to any one nation."

His proposal, he said, would be along the lines of the Cereals Conference of the International Emergency Food Council at Paris last July, when plans for distribution fo the world's food supplies for this year were discussed.

Situation Now Worse

"This special meeting," he said yesterday, "was called at the suggestion of the United States, because we then saw that world food supplies would be inadequate this year to meet the world's minimum requirements.

"Actually, the situation is now even worse than we could foresee because of the spreading drought in Europe and bad weather in the corn belt of the United States and the wheat belt of Canada.

"I have been concerned for some time that the margin of safety in food supply in too much of the world depends upon good weather in this country.

"We have been gambling against nature for 10 years now. We have been winning, but every year the odds against us have gone up.

Remember Crop Failures

"Let us not forget. We have had widespread crop failures in the past."

"In view of the fact that the United States is to undertake the expenditure of billions of dollars in the program to rehabilitate Europe, wouldn't it make good sense for us to enter into arrangements with Latin-American and other countries able to expand production of food needed in Europe beyond that which we can furnish?"

The secretary then added that now "might be an opportune time to hold a meeting of the ministers of agriculture from these nations."

"I would certainly welcome the opportunity to sit down with them and see how we might pull together," he said. "Many countries, not alone just us, have a great stake in Europe's recovery. I know they are anxious to help."

State House Dome to Be Inspected, Repaired

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 21 (AP).—Workers began building a scaffolding today to provide footing for inspectors to study the interior of the ancient State House dome. The scaffold will be 85 to 90 feet high and large enough to enable the inspectors to reach all parts of the dome.

After the survey is completed, necessary wood repair and painting will be done.

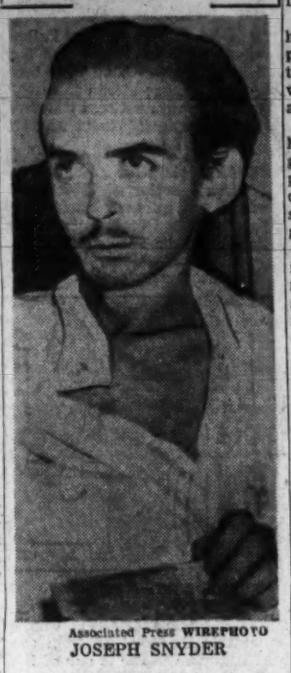
VA Takes Over

GI, Starving For Months, Hospitalized



Associated Press WIREPHOTO
JOSEPH SNYDER

Pittsburgh, Nov. 21 (AP).—A jobless war veteran who said he had "not eaten regularly since his meager savings ran out three months ago lay in Allegheny General Hospital tonight, suffering from malnutrition.

Police found Joseph Snyder, 22, on the floor of a room he shared with his brother. His wasted frame, once 165 pounds, weighed about 85, his arms and legs had shrunk to the dimensions of broomsticks.

Snyder, who said he served 22 months in the Army, including a year in the European theater, told in a weak voice how he had been unable to get work since his return from the service in October, 1945.

"I just couldn't seem to find anything," he said. "For a while I lived on the $20 a week Government unemployment compensation. I had about $200 in mustering out pay, but that ran out in September."

Since then, the man said he had eaten only every two days, sometimes less often.

His brother, Richard, took Joe to live with him two weeks ago but Joe slept on the floor because there was only one bed. He said Richard didn't have the money to feed him regularly, but sometimes brought him eggs, or potatoes or coffee.

Alleged Culprit Discovered on Jury

Towson, Md., Nov. 21 (AP).—The sheriff didn't have to look far for Milburn M. Randolph when the 35-year-old dance band leader was indicted by the Baltimore County grand jury on a charge of accepting a race bet. Randolph was serving on a trial jury in Circuit Court.

Truman Not to Send Long-Term Aid Program To Congres Until After Thanksgiving

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

President Truman will not send his Marshall Plan proposals to Congress until after Thanksgiving, he indicated yesterday.

He told his news conference that his recommendations for the European recovery program would go to Capitol Hill in about 10 days, which would bring the date to about December 1.

He had previously explained that he would send a message to Congress on the long-term recovery program, as distinct from the request for 597 million dollars in stopgap aid which is now in congressional hands.

With his message the President is expected to submit an enormous new mass of detailed proposals and supporting data to a Congress already staggering under a weight of documents on the recovery program.

The recommendations alone make up a book described by an informed source as being two thirds as thick as the Washington telephone directory. The supporting evidence, statistical and otherwise, fills three thick volumes.

So far Congress has had nothing but unofficial or semiofficial studies: the Herter report of a 19-man House committee of inquiry, and he reports of the three presidentially appointed study committees under Secretary Krug, Edwin G. Nourse and Secretary Harriman.

But the Administration's coming proposals will represent the collective judgment of the executive branch of the Government. They have been almost five months in the making; they are the product of intensive work by committees representing the State, Commerce, Treasury and Agriculture Departments, in consultation with technical experts of the 16 European countries that met at Paris last summer.

American and foreign officials familiar with the work say there has never been a finer example of interdepartmental cooperation in Washington.

The product of all this study and discussion is now in the President's hands. He is said to be delaying its submission to Congress for two main reasons:

1. He wants to give the Senate, at least, time to dispose of stopgap aid before sending the vastly larger and more complex European recovery program to the Hill; and

2. He has to make up his own mind on a number of controversial issues involving politics, chiefly the methods of administering the recovery program.

Secretary Marshall gave some hints in his statement of November 10 of the course that would be recommended. He said, for example, that the program would cost about $7,500,000,000 between April 1 of next year and June 30, 1949.

But he did not attempt to outline in detail how it should be administered. He did not answer such questions as how much should be spent outside the United States, whether any supplies should be bought from Soviet-dominated eastern Europe, whether the World Bank should be used to get reconstruction supplies to Europe, and to what extent the United States should try to supervise the European recovery effort.

All these questions, and many more, remain to be answered in the proposals which the President now says will go to the Hill in about 10 days.

BARNABY

Well, I'll leave Blotto in your hands, O'Malley. Frankly, I'm very glad to be rid of him . . . Take care of yourselves . . .
Atlas!
Er, I've just remembered a couple of very pressing matters of an important military nature. Keeps one jumping, being a Generalissimo-in-Chief. You stand by for orders, Blotto. At ease.
Are you leaving Blotto here, Mr. O'Malley? . . .
Come, m'boy—
Jack Morley

Can We Still Use Car Tokens? We Certainly Can!

"I am inclosing several streetcar tokens which I've just come across," writes G. W. Law Student Woodrow W. Gorbach of 1216. 16th st. nw.

"I immediately thought of your collection for the benefit of Children's Hospital. Can you still use these tokens?"

PERSONAL NOTES

I am informed that there have appeared in print recently several stories which were quite similar to the one we ran the other day under the caption "The Smiths Go Calling."

As far as I can ascertain, the Saturday Evening Post was the first to carry the yarn, and it later appeared elsewhere.

Obviously, I wasn't aware of this when I got the story from a local professor of law. However, he said that it actually happened to a friend of his—and I never willingly pick an argument with a lawyer.

So, as far as I'm concerned, it happened.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two 2-month-old kittens, very playful." (Victor 3250, Saturday or Sunday.)

"Good mouser, gentle with children." (Glebe 4400, Ext. 310 after 6 p. m.)

MISCELLANY

As of this month, the telephone company has gone back to its prewar practice of inclosing return envelopes with its bills . . . Nancy Kenaston of 4710 S. 30th st., Arlington, Va., reports that many recruits are joining her club to help gather food for the devastated areas of Europe . . . Pauline Friedland of 5529 Hawthorne pl. nw. and W. O. Scott, jr., of 616 22d st. nw. join the applause for our courteous transit workers . . . Betty Hatcher of Purcellville, Va., says that we'd have fewer Give-Away items to run if District Liners would adopt a plan employed by her local fire department. It gives away pets as prizes at its summer carnivals . . . Harry Traub of 2743 N. Lorcom la., Arlington, Va., is puzzled by a sign he saw posted in Yellowstone National Park. The sign said: "If approached by a bear, do not become alarmed. Simply talk in a conversational manner." Harry wonders: "About what?"

REGAL PASTIME

PRETTY SMART DOG

Kathryn Porterfield of 403 N. West st., Alexandria, Va., thinks that this classified ad from the Alexandria Gazette is one of the cleverest she's seen in a long while:

"WANTED TO RENT—White Eskimo spitz dog, age 4, perfect gentleman, wants to rent furnished 2-bedroom home near Alexandria for his 16-year-old mistress and her parents. Can pay up to $125. Will guarantee that humans behave, and personally agree to guard your property with my very life."

BANKERS BORROW, TOO

D. W. Weber of Hyattsville, Md., tells me that the November issue of the magazine Banking picked up a story which ran in this column several weeks ago.

Men of great discernment, those bankers.

NEW LOOK REVISITED

Women, women, cease repining;
Clouds must have a silver lining.
When your skirts much longer grow
Runs in nylons will not show.
M. C. G.

ADD NAMES

D. P. Van Gorder of 121 11th st. ne. wonders whether we're aware of the fact that Covington, Va., has a moving company known as "Angels Transfer."

Local and long distance? Or do they just specialize in heavenly jobs?

SAME DIFFERENCE

"I must have listened to the song a thousand times," writes A. V. B. of 1749 P st. nw., "and I always thought the singer was referring to 'The Lady From 29 Pounds.' It didn't make sense.

"Now I see the title in print, and I find that it's 'The Lady From 29 Palms.' It still doesn't make sense."

HOW TRUE, HOW TRUE!

Lieut. R. C. Gould of Coast Guard Headquarters tells me that when he was in Dayton, Ohio, recently he saw this sign on a theater:

GONE WITH THE WIND REGULAR PRICES

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK—Two weeks ago a man visited Leslie Harris, the radio producer, to organize a 1000-piece orchestra to conduct his own songs, exactly the way he often had done it in his dreams. The performances were to take place in Yankee Stadium and Soldiers Field, which would be enlarged to accommodate a million customers . . . Last week he told Harris: "I like the way you do business. I'd like you to work for me. Here's a $50,000 check on account, while you make up your mind" . . . Harris kept the check in his desk drawer and showed it to all visitors. The next day a lawyer came to his office in behalf of a client whose son was a bit eccentric. He asked Harris to return the check, because the check was good.

CHATTER: Lee Rogow, who was Billy Rose's column assistant until recently, will succeed Rose as PM's columnist on January 1 . . . Frank Sinatra, who returned to the New York Capitol Tuesday, was stricken with laryngitis because he made recordings until 3 a. m. every morning, building a back-log in anticipation of the Petrillo ban . . . The threatened strike of the restaurant employes in the Broadway cafes has been called off. The dispute with the hotel and restaurant workers union was settled yesterday . . . The editing on "Arch of Triumph" was finished yesterday. The dubbing will require four weeks' work and then the picture will be ready for showing.

COST: Arthur Schwartz, who is producing and writing the musical, "Inside U. S. A.," in collaboration with Howard Dietz, telephoned Beatrice Lillie yesterday. Miss Lillie, who will star in the show, is in London. She told Schwartz that he hadn't sent her any of the song lyrics as yet, whereupon Schwartz sang two of the songs to her . . . "I like them," said Miss Lillie. "Sing them again" . . . When you telephone me, I'll sing them to you as many times as you like," said Schwartz. "But when I call, at $4 per minute, I sing them only once."

EASE: Paul Small, the agent, tells prospective clients of another client of his, whom he made so wealthy that the man phoned to report: "I'm now so rich that I don't have to raise a finger. Not one finger. Come to my home and see for yourself." When he arrived he found the client seated beside his swimming pool, and wearing a checkered robe, with numbers on each check. The man told one butler: "Place my right foot on the table." He told another butler: "Place a cigar in my mouth. Now light it for me." . . . Then he told a third butler: "Get in back of me. Look at the robe. Ready? Scratch '13' and rub '21'."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Cabinet Debated Price Proposals

By Drew Pearson

Inside fact is that before the President delivered his militant message demanding price controls, four members of his Cabinet remonstrated with him against it. They were: Secretary of Commerce Harriman.

Pearson

This Cabinet quartet felt that Truman should have laid greater stress on the fact that he didn't intend to use the compulsory price and wage controls which he requested of Congress, unless voluntary measures failed. This was their main criticism of the speech. Otherwise they went along.

Anderson and Harriman were particularly outspoken. At a White House session on Sunday, the day before the message was delivered, both argued that the two chief ghost-writers—Clark Clifford and Leon Keyserling of the President's Economic Council—had gone too far in expressing the need for compulsory controls.

Truman Sticks to Guns

The President explained that he couldn't promise absolutely that compulsory measures wouldn't be taken; therefore, it was better to have this authority, even though never used, than not to have it and take a chance on economic collapse.

Late Sunday afternoon the President's message was changed somewhat to meet the Anderson-Harriman objections. But something else was added that the Cabinet members still don't like, though, being good soldiers they will not admit it publicly.

The original draft of the Truman message called for controls on only food, clothing, fuel and rent. However, at the last minute, Truman added to the proposed control list a catch-all phrase: "vital commodities in short supply that basically affect industrial production."

This takes in virtually every consumer commodity, and Anderson and Harriman have told intimates that it will make the Truman program that much tougher to sell to a hostile Congress.

The Anderson-Harriman prediction is now fully confirmed. Republican leaders are seething. Undaunted, the President still believes his policy was right. Federal price compulsion won't be necessary, he believes, because the psychological effect of having compulsory powers, plus voluntary cooperation, will be enough to do the trick.

Don't Wait for Congress

Inside strategy is to get voluntary price controls in full swing immediately without waiting for Congress. As an initial step, Harriman will call in the Nation's top industrial leaders for a "showdown" conference on prices.

Secretary Harriman believes he can induce the industrialists to get together to reduce prices, providing they will not face prosecutions under the price-fixing code of the anti-trust laws. To guarantee this, he may ask Congress for changes in the laws to deal with the present emergency.

Harriman is especially anxious to persuade the big steel companies to crack down on the notorious "gray market," where steel is selling for two and three times the manufacturers' list price.

Scrubbing the Statues

Before the special session of Congress opened, George Washington was given a special scrubbing behind the ears; so also Daniel Webster, Henry Clay, William Jennings Bryan and 69 other notables.

Monuments to these historic figures stand in the Capitol's Hall of Fame, and it is the job of Capitol Architect David Lynn to put them in good condition before every session of Congress. This is no easy matter. The monuments require a special cleaning fluid, carefully analyzed by the Bureau of Standards. First, they must be rinsed with water, then doused with the cleaning fluid and wiped off with a wet cloth. Such a bath is prescribed twice a year for figures cast in marble. A few exceptions, such as Will Rogers, Huey Long and Robert E. Lee, are cast in bronze and get a sponge bath once a month. Only water can be used, because soap or cleaning fluid might turn them green.

Most difficult to bathe are Georgia's Alexander Hamilton Stephens, who was Vice President of the Confederacy, and Dr. Crawford Williamson Long, who discovered ether anesthesia. Both were sculptured from Georgia marble, which absorbs moisture and complicates the task of cleaning. Ethan Allen of Vermont, Revolutionary War hero who forced the British surrender of Ticonderoga, is the largest statue and takes the longest to clean.

Only one cannot seem to be kept clean—that of late Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, who needs his shoes shined and pants cuffs washed every day. He sits in a chair, his feet in such a position that hundreds of tourists tug on his pants legs.
